Victory Congress Gets under Way In Sombre Mood

Rayburn Re-Elected Speaker of House by Small Majority

President Roosevelt Will Address Joint Session Today

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The seventy-eighth Congress—dubbed the "Victory Congress"—met today in a mood for solemn united action to win the war and for sharp insistence upon writing its own laws on domestic issues, regardless of the wishes of the White House.

These two determinations dominated a brief preliminary session of speech-making and of organization for the tragically vital period which lies ahead. They were expressed by Republican spokesmen, conscious of their greatly reinforced strength. And they came from the Democratic side of the political barrier as well.

Rayburn Again Speaker

Last fall's election, with its wide Republican gains, was reflected at the outset in the closest vote for party control of the House in the last decade. The Democrats won By 217 to 206, they reelected Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Immediately, the tension of the situation was broken. Republicans and Democrats alike jumped to their feet in a stormy and prolonged ovation. And when Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, the defeated Republican nominee for speaker, said it was particularly appropriate that this honor should go to Rayburn on his sixty-first birthday, the pandemonium was renewed.

Someone among the Republicans started chanting "Happy Birthday to You." It was quickly picked up by others and in a moment, the whole House was singing, while Rayburn stood on the dais, smiling, but nearly overcome with embarrassment and emotion.

Democrats Cheer FDR

This was in vivid contrast with a later development. Rayburn, accepting the speakership, referred to President Roosevelt as the greatest "war leader" that could have been found for the present emergency. The Democrats shouted and hand-clapped their noisy approval. The big Republican membership sat, stony silent, and bored.

The Senate, meanwhile solemnly went through its historic ritual of

Fighting French Take Vital Point

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP)—A Fighting French force driving up through southern Libya from the Lake Chad area has taken an important enemy position and held it against a counter-attack by enemy motorized columns, a communiqué from the headquarters of Brig.-Gen. Jacques LeClere announced tonight. (Jacques LeClere is the alias adopted by a Fighting French commander to protect his family in France.)

The communiqué as reported by Reuters follows:

"Weather conditions having improved, French troops have resumed their advance in southern Libya and have taken an important enemy position."

"Enemy motorized columns which attempted to retake the position were vigorously repulsed and were forced to retreat towards the north."

"The location of the position was not given."

"It arrived at three general conclusions which are familiar to us all. I don't know whether they are sound or not. But if they are they must be solved."

British Troops Report Advance In North Africa

Capture Jebel Azzag, Fifteen Miles West of Mateur

(By The Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 6—Veteran British first army troops captured Jebel Azzag and nearby points in an attack launched yesterday to drive the Axis enemy from high ground dominating Allied positions along a road about fifteen miles west of Mateur, the Allied command announced tonight.

It was the first real fighting in two weeks in North Tunisia. "Successful attacks were made on hills north of the road and we captured Jebel Azzag and other points in the vicinity," the Allied command communiqué announced.

"Our forces are mopping up isolated machine-gun posts and have repulsed a counter-attack against one of our newly won positions."

Axis Cruiser Hit

In the air, a headquarters spokesman said, Fortress bombers scored hits or near misses on a cruiser leaving the Tunisian harbor of Sfax and left the Sfax power station in flames.

The admiralty announced in London that British submarines had destroyed a large enemy troop transport and supply ship; hit and probably sunk two other vessels in the Mediterranean and bombarded the Italian and Axis-occupied Greek coasts.

Mateur is twenty-five miles southwest of the naval base of Bizerte. (Reuters, British news agency, said that a British force of Commandos and paratroopers won the battle over some of the best German troops in a three-hour fight.)

RAF Hurricane bombers and fighters supported the British on the ground. An RAF spokesman said that in battles yesterday four German Focke-Wulf 190 fighters and one Junkers 87 dive bomber were downed at the cost of one plane.

In addition to the Fortress attack on Sfax, American Marauder bombers struck at a Nazi airfield at Kairouan, about thirty-six miles southwest of Sousse.

21 More Towns, 2 Rail Stations Captured by Reds

German Casualty List Since Nov. 19 Placed at 330,150

Invaders Reported Retreating from Positions in Caucasus

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 7 (AP)—

Russia announced the capture of twenty-one towns and two more railway stations yesterday in the middle Don and Caucasus offensives and said that these drives have cost the Nazis more than 330,150 dead and captured since Nov. 19.

Two communiqués as broadcast by Moscow and heard by the Soviet Monitor here listed one town as Marinsk, which may be a town of that name on the lower Don about twenty-five miles west of Tsimlyansk, which the Russians said fell to their armies on Tuesday.

Marinsk is about ninety-two miles from Rostov, Caucasian gateway where the fall would trap hundreds of thousands of German troops in the Caucasus.

Another town was listed as Krem-Konstantinovskaya which the Soviet Monitor here did not locate. The Monitor first announced it incorrectly as Konstantinovsk. There is a city of that name sixty miles beyond Tsimlyansk and only about sixty-five miles short of Rostov—the key Nazi communications point whose seizure would trap huge German forces in the Caucasus.

Germans in Retreat

Many of the newly-won points were in the Nalchik-Prokhladnenski sector deep in the Caucasus where the Germans were reported retreating hastily northwestward toward Rostov lest they be trapped by the Russian columns striking westward from Stalingrad and southward along the Moscow-Rostov railway in the middle Don area.

The capture of these cities was reported in the regular midnight communiqué. Before it was issued a special communiqué said that 26,500 Germans had been killed from Jan. 1 to Jan. 5 on the Stalingrad front, and the regular bulletin added approximately 1,050 more Nazi casualties during yesterday's operations to that figure.

The Russians admitted the Germans were counter-attacking heavily in the middle Don and southwest of Stalingrad, but did not acknowledge any sustained resistance in the Caucasus battle zone.

Spangler Hopes GOP Can Get U. S. Back on Tracks

Republican Chairman States Party Aims in Magazine Article

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Harrison E. Spangler, recently elected Republican party national chairman, today asserted that the mission of Republicans was to "get the U. S. back on the tracks, keep it on the tracks, and to see that no force, foreign or domestic shall throw the switch."

In an article published in the American Magazine for January, Spangler called attention to duties of Republicans under a two-party system of government which he said had been imposed upon the G.O.P. by the voters' mandate at the last elections. He said the motto of Republicans might well be:

"Keep our republic on the main line."

Referring to the gains made by Republicans in the Senate, Congress and governorships, Spangler said:

Why This Change?

"There must be deep underlying causes which move the people to go to the polls and to vote against the party in power. And this is especially significant in time of war."

These were the Republican tasks ahead, he said:

To withhold nothing calculated to strengthen our arms.

To emphatically delete totalitarianism from the world.

Fight to withhold all powers dangerous to the republic.

9,000 Anthracite Miners Urged To Return to Work

Kennedy Seeks To End Strike over Wages and Higher Dues

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 6 (AP)—

An urgent appeal to return to work and adjust their grievances through "proper channels" was made tonight by Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, to more than 9,000 anthracite workers out on strike over wages and increased dues.

Kennedy's plea, climaxing a series of fast-breaking developments in the anthracite industry today, was made at a closed meeting of local union committeemen. He declared the union's executive committee would hear any protest over dues and said operators would be asked to open their contracts for wage negotiations as soon as the six-day week question is settled.

Will Vote on Question

The committeemen agreed to take Kennedy's recommendations back to their locals and submit them to a vote at special meetings.

Only a few hours before, price administrator Leon Henderson authorized at Washington an increase of approximately fifty cents a ton in hard coal ceiling prices to meet higher production costs and permit extension of the thirty-five-hour week to six days.

In the midst of these moves, a federal grand jury at New York indicted twenty-nine anthracite corporations—including some of the largest in the industry—and twenty-six of their officers or employees on charges of fixing prices from 1939 until the spring of 1942 in violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws.

10 to 15 Per Cent Cut in Consumer Goods Predicted for Stay-at-Homes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—America's civilian economy won't go down to bedrock this year, but there will be ten to fifteen per cent less goods and services for stay-at-homes to buy. This was the prediction today of Joseph L. Wiener, civilian supply director.

Citing prospects for disappearing metal gadgets, for normal supply of baby carriages and for such substitutes as glass frying pans, Wiener commented:

"The civilian standard of living in this country in 1943 will depend, to a degree, on the fortunes of war. The bedrock civilian economy which has been talked about is not expected to be reached in 1943 except in respect to civilian goods made from critical materials, such as steel and copper. But how much our civilian economy will be above bedrock will be determined largely by the extent and success of our military operations in 1943."

The cut in civilian supplies, he explained, runs in inverse ratio to victory. The faster and farther our military forces go, the more supplies they need, and the less will be left for civilians.

From a production standpoint, Wiener said, 1943 output for consumers will be at least fifteen to

AMERICANS SHELL JAP BASE AT MUNDA, NEW GEORGIA ISLE

Also Attack Japanese Cruiser and Bomb Transport; 84 Nipponese Troops Killed on Guadalcanal

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—In a daring foray into the Japanese-dominated middle Solomons, an American force of surface warships has shelled and battered the enemy air base and installations at Munda, New Georgia Island.

The operation, which was carried out during the early morning darkness yesterday, was reported in a navy communiqué today which told also of an air attack, with uncertain results, on a heavy Japanese cruiser, and the bombing of an enemy transport some 300 miles north of Guadalcanal island.

In addition, the communiqué related that eighty-four Japanese were killed in mopping up operations in the Mount Austen sector of Guadalcanal. Mount Austen, a 1,514-foot southwest of the American-held airfield, was wrested from the Japanese January 4.

Two U. S. Planes Lost

In all the operations, seven Japanese planes definitely were shot down and four others were probably destroyed. Two United States planes were lost.

In Aleutian waters, meanwhile, Mitchell medium bombers (North American P-25s) sank an enemy cargo ship 110 miles northeast of Kiska. This action took place yesterday, the navy announced. Today a liberator bomber (consolidated B-24) scored one direct and two near-hits on an enemy ship 185 miles southwest of Kiska.

The size of the surface task force which bombarded the Munda airfield was not indicated. Ordinarily, however, such a navy designation for a surface force means it includes at least one cruiser and several destroyers.

Md. Legislature Hears O'Connor's War Effort Plea

Conlon Re-Elected Speaker, White Will Be Floor Leader

By JOHN F. CHANDLER

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 6 (AP)—A sombre wartime Maryland legislature opened its 1943 session today and heard from Governor O'Connor and leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties a solemn reminder that the Free State's law-making body faced the greatest test in its history.

Addressing a joint session of the House and Senate late in the day in the more spacious House chamber, the governor voiced the theme of legislative leaders by declaring that "the immediate objective of our efforts must be to help win the war as quickly as possible."

Session Starts Late

There was a hitch, however, in the carefully made plans of the Democrats to get the session off to a fast start because the majority party decided to caucus this morning, and it was not until 12:35 p. m. that the House was called to order.

Democratic senators, meanwhile, in caucus across the corridor, finally set their opening for 2 p. m., but the Senate gavel did not fall until 3:35 p. m.

There was no explanation for the delay, and the governor—who had been slated to speak at 3 p. m.—waited in his office until 4:30 p. m., when he was escorted to the House for his address.

"It is evident," O'Connor said in outlining his program for the ninety-day session, "that the years immediately ahead will challenge all the ingenuity we possess, to devise laws

Holdes of A, B or C Gas Cards May Lose Them if They Disobey New Order

Persons Caught at Race Tracks or Other Amusement Places Face Cancellation of Part or All of Their Rationing Coupons; Henderson Blames Abuses of Owners for Drastic Rule in Eastern States

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP)—OPA today banned pleasure driving in the east and slashed the amount of fuel oil that schools, stores, theaters and other non-residential establishments may consume in the seventeen-state area.

Many such buildings face the possibility of curtailing their hours or days of operations under the order. OPA left it to the school boards, store operators and others in charge of oil-consuming buildings to determine how they will meet the reduced fuel rations.

Amusement places were especially hard hit. The order forbidding pleasure driving in the east specifically banned motoring to theaters as well as race tracks.

With this order certain to cut down amusement centers' patronage and the fuel oil order threatening to make theaters and night clubs cool beyond comfort, continued operation of some of the establishments seemed in doubt.

FUEL OIL REDUCTION

Use of fuel oil in non-residential establishments in the east was curtailed twenty-five per cent below present rations, giving them about forty-five per cent of normal requirements.

Under the edict against pleasure driving, effective at noon tomorrow, any motorist driving to amusement centers or to "purely social engagements" faces the cancellation of all or part of his gasoline ration.

OPA called upon state, county and local law enforcement agencies to carry out the new regulation in seventeen eastern states and the District of Columbia where the oil-gasoline shortage is acute.

Race Tracks Hit

The ruling immediately threatened the operation of race tracks. President John C. Clark of the Miami (Fla.) Jockey Club said Hialeah Park, scheduled to open next Wednesday, would not operate "until such time as there is full approval of the continuance of racing." Chairman Herbert Bayard Swope of the New York State Racing Commission said racing would continue if it could do so legitimately—"if not, it will stop. It asks no special consideration."

OPA prohibited all pleasure motoring by holders of A, B and C passenger car ration cards. It did not define "pleasure driving" fully but said the term would have "broad meaning" and would be interpreted in an official regulation tomorrow.

However, the finding of a passenger car at a race track will be taken as "prima facie evidence that gasoline rations and tires are being dissipated needlessly and illegally," the announcement stated.

Henderson Makes Choice

Price Administrator Leon Henderson made it clear that he had chosen this action in preference to a new slash in the value of A coupons; he said checks had proved nearly half of all "A" rations in the east were being used for essential driving only. This ration is good for only three gallons a week in the seaboard area.

"The chief abuses, insofar as gallons used for pleasure (are concerned)," said Henderson, "stem from the B and C card holders, who either have exaggerated their needs or are not fulfilling the car sharing plans they outlined to procure the rations originally."

Henderson said the ruling was dictated by the fact that "there simply isn't enough fuel oil or gasoline to go around," because military and civilian demands are exhausting eastern reserves of petroleum more rapidly than over-strained tank cars, tankers and pipelines can replenish them.

"Failure to act swiftly and boldly could only mean serious threat to the war effort."

Non-Residential Use of Fuel Oil Cut 25 Per Cent in Eastern Area

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration today ordered present fuel oil rations of non-residential users slashed twenty-five per cent in the seventeen eastern states and the District of Columbia.

The cut, effective as of tomorrow, actually reduces the ration of commercial, industrial and institutional users to about 45 per cent of normal as compared with commercial rations as originally issued based on 66 2-3 per cent of normal.

Fuel oil usage will be reduced to a point, the agency said, that "may well mean curtailed performance, shortened hours and even closing of a day or two a week."

"It may ultimately be necessary to cut this (non-residential) category," OPA said theaters, amusement places, department stores, office buildings, factories, schools, colleges, government buildings and all other non-dwelling buildings would be affected.

Hitler Recalls Most of Troops From Caucasus

Apparently Abandoning His 300-Mile Deep Russian Salient

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Hitler has thumbed his armies in the Caucasus back out of that perilous 300 mile deep salient to avert an even greater disaster than menaces his shivering forces caught in the Stalingrad pocket.

That conclusion is inescapable on the basis of Moscow advices. It was true even before Red Star, official organ of the Soviet army, proclaimed a general German retreat in the Caucasus and Russian war bulletins detailed the fast crumbling spearhead of the Nazi threat to the Grozny and Baku oil fields with recapture of key junctions in the Nalchik-Terek river theater. There is no other way to explain swift Russian advances in that sector. Blind Nazi accounts of successful "defensive" fighting on all active fronts in Russia do more to confirm than to challenge the Moscow versions.

Thins Out Nazi Line

Hitler has either thinned out his most extended southern front in the Caucasus to find reinforcements for the long and jeopardized Eastern flank of that great salient; or he has ordered a retreat northward from its apex above Grozny, leaving only rear guards to impede Russian pursuit.

Whichever course he has taken, it sufficiently indicates his growing alarm over Russian threats to the Rostov communication key to the whole southern flank of his extended front in Russia. It also spells out into further proof of his waning resources in manpower, planes and—perhaps most important of all—fuel for his war machine to meet all the defensive emergencies forced upon him by the still expanding Russian offensive and Allied attacks in Africa.

Drive for Oil Falls

That probably is the most encouraging aspect of the vast struggle at this stage to the inner circle of United Nations leadership. The facts about Nazi oil resources have been difficult to determine, yet many well informed observers have thought all along that the Nazi 1942 offensive was primarily a drive to tap Russian oil fields in the Caucasus.

If that is true, Russian successes in folding back the nose of the Caucasus salient above Grozny, whether due to a forced German retreat or sheer Red offensive power, are the most notable Russian offensive achievement of the war.

The march to the Volga at Stalingrad was essential to Nazi strategy, as Hitler himself has told his people to justify ever mounting casualties. But it was more essential to protect his drive for oil in the Caucasus from the fate now threatening it than to permit Nazi domination of the Volga traffic artery against Russian use, as he said.

No Hope of Success

There is every indication that whatever he had hoped of his Caucasus drive last year, Hitler long ago gave up the thought that he might reach either Grozny or Baku without another spring campaign. The Russian stand at Stalingrad insured that.

If Russian thrusts converging toward Rostov from the northeast, east and southeast and also threatening the Rostov-Baku rail artery of Nazi communications along a 300 mile span have forced German retreat from the depth of the Caucasus salient, Hitler has already suffered his heaviest blow in Russia. He is losing his jump-off position for a drive for oil later in the year.

Hitler smashed Greece, pinned Turkey to a neutral role and dragged Bulgaria into the Axis fold to protect his oil sources. He obviously fears air attack upon Rumanian wells as a major element of future Allied designs against the "soft under belly" of the Axis stemming out of the African campaigns.

Prepare to welcome home our fighting men, not with cheers alone but with jobs.

"It would seem to be both improper and ungrateful were the United States to announce a plan or fabricate a mechanism for postwar procedure without consultation and agreement with our three great partners: China, Russia, Great Britain.

"Finally, the program of the Republican party must be to restore government under the constitutional, Republican form; to eradicate collectivism, totalitarianism, any scare of state Socialism."

AXIS PLANES LEFT BEHIND BY FLEEING NAZIS

When General Montgomery's Eighth Army marched into Derna, in Libya, they found that the Axis forces under Rommel had fled. At the air field, just outside the town, the British found these wrecked Nazi planes. Most of the bombers and fighters had been damaged by R.A.F. bombings and strafings. Those that had escaped were hastily demolished by the retreating Germans.

organization. In groups of four, new senators were escorted to the rostrum and sworn in. Quickly, the usual procedure of adopting a resolution to notify the House and the president that the Senate was ready for business was accomplished.

All this preliminary to a session which many prophesied would prove the most important in the nation's history. Tomorrow it will meet in joint session to hear President Roosevelt deliver his annual message, making recommendations for congressional action. After that the session will settle down to the details of its great task.

See Grim Task Ahead

All in all, it was an unusual convening of Congress. If there was less ceremonial formality than in past years, there also was less horseplay. Frolic coats, usually the rule, were not to be seen. There were the usual amiable and boisterous greetings between members. But over all there was an atmosphere which bespoke a grim recognition of the times.

The House, with the Republican side of the aisle well filled after years of big Democratic majorities, looked strange. Well to the rear but prominent in bright vivid purple sat the most publicized of the new members, Rep. Clare Boothe Luce of Connecticut.

The membership, milling about the chamber, was called to order by Clerk South Trimble. The chaplain, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, prayed briefly, asking that the membership be vested with a "great discretion," and then nominations for the speakership were received.

Rayburn was nominated by Rep. Sheppard (D-Calif.) and Martin by Rep. Woodruff (R-Mich.). The roll-call vote followed immediately. It was close all the way, and although there was no doubt of the ultimate outcome, many members kept a pencilled tally of its progress.

Martin Names New Congress

Trimble announced the result and Martin, one of a committee which escorted Rayburn down the center aisle, presented him to the House, with a brief message.

"The Seventy-seventh Congress was known as the War Congress," he said. "This is going to be known as the Victory Congress."

"This Congress is going to see this war to a decisive and early end."

That, he added, was the "aim of every one," and he continued: "The leaders of the opposition pledge their effort to that end."

In Rayburn, he went on to say, the House had elected a "really great speaker," and a "great American."

The birthday statement, and then a great ovation, one of several followed.

The speaker, accepting his post, said he was "deeply moved." "We have just closed a great Congress," he said. "We were criticized and we will be criticized."

Hopes To Avoid Criticism

Congress, he said, makes but cannot administer the laws. It declares war but others must fight them. The Seventy-seventh Congress, he added, passed every law and granted every dollar that was necessary for the war.

"I believe and I trust," he added, "that the Congress assembling today will so act that just criticism will not fall upon it."

Bringing up himself the bristling issue of presidential powers, he reassured the impatient among the membership that there was abundant co-operation between the White House and Congress. Congressional leaders confer with the president weekly, he said, and discuss future proposals and actions.

"It is my unwavering intention to defend and protect the rights, the prerogatives and the powers of the house of representatives," he said, as both sides of the aisle applauded vigorously.

Adding that there was co-operation at the White House, he took a sharper tone in speaking of other divisions of the executive branch of the government. Officials in these agencies, he said in a tone of strong determination, "must consult" those who are responsible in Congress.

"I trust and I believe that that will be done," he added.

Warning to Axis

As for the war, it must be pressed on to victory, and there must be "no stopping until the vandalism and aganism of Berlin, Rome and Tokyo are wiped from the face of the earth."

"We must win the war and keep it won," Rayburn said, and after the victory we must "disarm these vandals and keep them disarmed."

Rep. Sabath (D-Ill.), the dean of the House, administered the oath to Rayburn. Then, the speaker administered the oath to the House. The members stood, with right hands raised, and chorused the usual "I do," at the close.

More sharply than any other, Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) raised the issue of presidential powers and congressional independence of the executive branch of the government. Cox is an influential member of the southern bloc which repeatedly has opposed New Deal proposals. Because of the close division between Democrats and Republicans in the House, this bloc is considered to hold a balance of power, which it can swing either way.

Cox Backs Congress

"We recognize with regret," he said, "that the terrible business of war renders necessary the temporary surrender of many of our liberties and privileges, but let me ask you, have we not at times gone dangerously far astray? If we expect to keep America as we know and love America, do we not need to stop, take our bearings, and be certain of our course?"

"The people expect the laws governing them to be made by their Congress; to be made by those they choose to represent them, and not by people they have never seen, whose policies they know nothing about whom they have elected to no office, and with whom they are unacquainted."

"This House, speaking the voice of the people, is determined that the legislative shall be in fact as well as name a co-equal branch of the government. It is determined to stand upon its own feet, to do its own thinking, to write its own laws, and in its own right to perform its constitutional functions. x x x

"The people must be heard through their representatives in Congress. The Congress must be heard in the supreme councils of the nation."

Clark Gable

Where he'll go now is something even Gable doesn't know—but he hopes it'll be to combat service, to get a crack at Tojo and the Jerries with the business end of a heavy machine gun.

Awarding the silver emblem to Gable, now a first lieutenant in the air force, Col. W. A. Maxwell described the former film star as "an excellent student."

Gable, smiling happily, expressed hope of seeing action. "I enjoyed the training program here," he said. "It's a very thorough course, and the men who finish it are equipped to do a grand job. They're a fine group of chaps, and they have blood in their eyes. They want to see action, and of course I would like to see action, too."

He said he hoped to return to motion pictures after the war. He still is under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, although it is suspended for the duration.

Gable volunteered as a private last summer, advancing to the rank of corporal when he entered officer-candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla. He was commissioned a second lieutenant upon completion of this course, and assigned to Tyndall Field, where he won his first lieutenancy.

At Tyndall, he had classroom instruction in aircraft identification and machine gun mechanism, then went to the firing ranges for practice with rifles, small and large machine guns, and turret guns. Finally he had gunnery practice while flying in a plane.

In civilian life he was an ardent sportsman and a crack rifle shot.

As predicted several weeks ago, veteran leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties were named to major leadership offices in both houses.

Senator Arthur H. Brice (D-Kent) was elected president of the Senate, thus becoming lieutenant governor for the second time. Brice was Senate president two years ago.

Conlon Again Speaker

In the House, Thomas E. Conlon (D-Balto Fifth), was re-elected speaker, and it was generally assumed that delegate John S. White (D-Prince Georges) would become majority floor leader when committee appointments are made tomorrow.

Senator James J. Lindsay (D-Balto county) will be named Democratic floor leader in the Senate tomorrow when Senate committees are announced.

Both chambers went through the formality of naming leaders, with the Republican minority nominating Senator Wilmer Fell Davis (R-Caroline) for president, and delegate J. Milton Dick (R-Allegany) speaker.

After the large Democratic majority had seated Brice and Conlon, their elections were made unanimous upon motion of the Republicans "in a spirit of harmony."

Conlon, in his brief acceptance talk, said he was "doubly appreciative of the honor x x x because it is the first time in over 120 years that a speaker has served for three consecutive regular sessions, and because my re-election today was by a practically new house."

The speaker said he was "certain" that the House was "fully conscious of the importance and gravity of this 1943 session."

"We are to serve our state in the midst of war conditions, a condition no previous legislature has ever been called upon to face, and the like of which future legislatures, we earnestly pray, will be spared."

Conlon, who is vice chairman of the legislative council which drafts bills when the legislature is not in session, announced that 100 bills would be introduced tomorrow in the House, and 100 in the Senate.

"It is not my purpose to ask any special consideration of these bills," Conlon said, "but I wish to tell you x x x that each and every one of the 200 bills on which you will be asked to pass judgment is the result of most painstaking research, study and public hearing."

Delegate White, who nominated Conlon for the speakership, in hinting at the recently-proposed State War Council bill that would give the governor and the appointed council power to suspend or modify any Maryland law deemed detrimental to the war effort, said "we have a tremendous responsibility."

The governor and war council would act after notification from the federal government or army and navy that some law was hampering the war effort.

"We are faced with the question," White declared, "of just how far we are ready to go in giving up our precious state rights. We may have to move a little in this direction, or that direction, but it is for us to decide."

Brice, nominated for Senate president by Senator John B. Funk (D-Frederick), thanked his colleagues and appealed for a harmonious session.

When the governor finished his address, both houses reconvened then adjourned until tomorrow noon, the Senate at 5:05 p. m., and the House five minutes later.

336 Americans Held In the Philippines

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The names of 336 American soldiers who are prisoners of the Japanese in the Philippine Islands were announced today by the War Department.

Among them was Capt. Willard C. Bianchi, of New Ulm, Minn., who won the congressional medal of honor for heroism on Bataan last February 3. Although wounded twice, he advanced alone against an enemy machine gun nest and silenced it with grenades, then climbed atop a tank and used its anti-aircraft machine gun against an enemy position until a third bullet knocked him to the ground.

The list contained the names of 334 officers, one enlisted man and one warrant officer. Its publication brought to 804 the total of American prisoners in the Philippines whose names have been reported officially to the army by the Japanese government through the international Red Cross and announced here by the department.

Veterans Again Head Houses of Md. Legislature

Brice and Conlon Re-Elected To Serve Another Term

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 6 (AP)—A pair of law-making veterans headed up Maryland's 1943 General Assembly today after both the Senate and the House of Delegates completed their organization.

Senator Arthur H. Brice (D-Kent) and Delegate Thomas E. Conlon (D-Balto), who have served as Senate president and speaker of the House since the 1939 legislature, were reelected without much fanfare.

Oddly enough, both men had decided to return to office only after a coalition political group had induced them that their experience would be valuable during the state's first wartime legislature.

Democrats were solidly behind the two when the voting took place, while Brice received a "harmony" vote from Senator Joseph A. Wilmer (R-Charles) before Senator Wilmer Fell Davis (R-Caroline) nominated in opposition, withdrew.

Hear Appeals for Harmony

Both chambers heard appeals for a departure from party politics during the elections. Delegate J. Milton Dick (R-Allegany), nominated to oppose Conlon, and Davis, in turn, motioning that the elections of the two veterans be made unanimous.

In party caucus preceding the inaugural session, Democrats and Republicans selected their various floor leaders and other chieftains.

John S. White, Prince George's delegate, was chosen by the Democrats to continue as House majority floor leader, while James J. Lindsay of Baltimore county was named to lead their forces in the Senate.

Both appointments are expected to be made tomorrow by Conlon and Brice. As House majority floor leader, White also will head the Ways and Means committee.

Lindsay will become Senate Finance committee chairman, taking up the duties assumed in 1941 by former Senator Dudley G. Roe (D-Queen Anne's), who was not a candidate for the Senate in the last election.

Dick Retains Post

The Republican caucus, held last night, designated Davis as minority floor leader in the Senate and named Dick to continue in the House.

The nine Republican senators won a "victory" in one sense when their request to the Senate, that they be given seats together in the chamber—and according to seniority—was honored. This was the first time in modern history that both Democrats and Republicans had not been seated without regard to party.

In the House, Minority Leader Dick hoped tomorrow to effect the same arrangement.

Joint Caucus Committee

The Republicans also brought something new into this year's picture, naming a "joint-caucus" committee, headed by Senator Robert B. Kimble (Allegany). Kimble announced that the veteran J. Frank Parran (Calvert) would be Senate caucus chairman for the Republicans and Delegate James B. Monroe (Charles) would hold the same title in the House.

Mrs. Lulu W. Boucher, Allegany Republican delegate, was named secretary of the "joint-caucus."

Kimble explained that the committee had been set up so that Republicans in both houses could "caucus" to decide "party policy" at any time during the ninety-day session. Democrats professed bewilderment at the move and said they had "no idea" of what the Republicans might have in mind but would not organize a similar group.

Before the elections, Delegate Charles Carroll, Jr. (D-Howard) was elected speaker pro tem by the House and J. Wilmer Cronin (D-Harford) president pro tem of the Senate.

The House appointed Daniel J. Lyons of Baltimore to its clerkship while C. Andrew Schaab, veteran of twenty legislatures, was reappointed Senate secretary.

In rounding out its organization, the Republicans named the following honorary desk officers:

W. David Tilghman, Elkridge, treasurer of Maryland; Paul Robertson, Baltimore, chief clerk of the House; Henry Trisler, Hagerstown, assistant chief clerk; Carroll Smith, Westminster, journal clerk; A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg, reading clerk; and Joseph Lloyd Carter, Baltimore, sergeant-at-arms.

Potato Trading Trust Alleged In Federal Suit

Thirteen Corporations and 16 Individuals Face Charges

WILSON, N. C., Jan. 6 (AP)—A mass of statistical testimony was taken today in United States district court here at the trial of thirteen corporations and sixteen individuals on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust act in connection with potato trading in North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland.

The only witness examined, Albert E. Mercker, potato expert with the United States Agriculture Department's food distribution administration, identified and explained market news reports and charts he had made from reports on potato prices and daily car lot shipments for North Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland.

The witness also defined delivered and f.o.b. prices in the produce business.

Sought Stabilized Prices

On cross-examination by W. A. Lucas, counsel for the Atlantic Commission Company, Mercker admitted that the United States Department of Agriculture attempted to maintain and stabilize prices of potatoes in order to assure the farmer a fair return for his product.

Lucas read two telegrams he said were from C. W. Sheffield, the State Agriculture Department man in charge of potatoes at Washington, D. C., to S. M. Jones of New Bern, a potato grower and defendant in this case, giving market quotations in June and July, 1941, and asking Jones to hold steady.

Mercker testified that this was an effort by Sheffield to stabilize the market and maintain prices.

The witness identified a telegram he sent Jones in June, 1941, expressing appreciation to Jones for help in trying to keep the market up and also one to the Atlantic Commission Company on the same date giving market quotations and asking the company to hold the price down.

Wanted To Help Farmers

F. E. Winslow of Rocky Mount, attorney for Thomas P. Thompson, managing director of the southeast chain store counsel, had Mercker identify a letter from Thompson asking for information on potatoes in the Virginia-Carolina-Georgia territory because Thompson wanted to help the farmers in that area.

Technicalities concerning the potato industry were explained in detail by Mercker.

Mercker testified that he did not know of any meetings of dealers in various places in North Carolina as charged by the government.

10 to 15 Per

twenty per cent less than last year, however, stores and dealers still have fairly large supplies of goods made in previous years, and the amount of goods on the market therefore will drop only ten to fifteen per cent.

On durable goods—electrical appliances, radios, and other big civilian items—Weiner estimated 1943 purchases at thirty-five per cent less than 1942, following a forty-five per cent decline from 1941 to 1942.

He figured that purchase of non-durable goods, including clothing, would decline to fifteen per cent less than in 1942. Last year purchases were five per cent above 1941.

The public will be able to spend about the same in 1943 as in 1942 on civilian services, such as beauty treatments, transportation, recreations and medical aid, he calculated.

Use of steel for civilians will be limited to 1,500,000 tons, only about 8 per cent of what they used in 1940, when automobiles were being made. Nearly all the steel allotted civilians will be needed to make essential repair parts.

"Offsetting to some extent the loss of production in civilian goods," Weiner said, "the use of substitute materials is permitting considerable production of articles that otherwise might have gone out of production."

He listed as examples wood furniture, glass kettles, wooden buckets, glass washboards, wooden rakes, and wooden springs in furniture.

British Troops

There was nothing to report from the land forces pursuing Nazi Marshal Rommel in Libya.

The Germans merely announced fighting on a minor scale in north Africa with air engagements in which three enemy planes were shot down while the Italians declared fighter bombers had "effectively bombed" the harbors and warehouses of Algiers, Bougie and Philippeville.

The British admiralty's communique announcing its new submarine successes said the big torpedoes transport was encountered off Sicily while bound toward Africa. Despite a heavy escort, she was said to have been hit by three torpedoes and sunk.

The communique also said a submarine scored a "large number of hits" in a bombardment of a brick railroad viaduct near Palermo, Italy, eighty miles southeast of Naples, and had inflicted considerable damage.

Another British submarine was said to have shelled harbor installations in the Greek port of Kyme on the Aegean sea, on the east coast of Greece.

some 360 miles southeast of Rostov. This bolstered the belief of British military quarters that the Germans were withdrawing in that area without putting up any organized fight there.

Much Equipment Captured

The tremendous quantities of captured equipment listed by the Russians in the action southwest of Stalingrad was seen as further evidence of a Nazi withdrawal so precipitate that huge dumps of valuable stores fell intact into Russian hands.

Red army troops were "conducting engagements for the annihilation of an encircled enemy garrison" on the middle Don front, the mid-night communique said.

This phrase has been used for several days by the Russians to describe action apparently along the Moscow-Rostov railway in the Millerovo area. The Russian columns pushing southward there have met heavy resistance from fresh German reserves thrown into the struggle.

One Russian tank unit was said to have driven the Germans from an unidentified town, killing 300 Nazis and capturing much equipment.

West of Stalingrad, presumably in the Don-Volga river pocket where the Russians are trying to annihilate the remnants of twenty-two Nazi divisions which they say they have encircled there, the communique acknowledged "stubborn resistance," but said Soviet troops had advanced to overrun a series of enemy trenches. Approximately 400 Germans were killed in this battle, the communique said, and Red army destroyed three grounded Nazi transport planes and shot down nine other aircraft in combat.

A Splendid Program Of Legislative Action

THAT is a comprehensive but constructive program of policy and recommendations presented by Galen L. Tait, state chairman, and adopted by the caucus of Republican members of the General Assembly on the eve of its biennial session at Annapolis.

The program outlined is somewhat extensive, embracing some thirty-nine specifications, but its scope impresses the fact that many important things are faced for solution both as the result of the war impact upon the state and as the result of administrative dereliction.

The outstanding utterance, perhaps, on which the course of the party is fundamentally chartered, is contained in one succinct sentence in the preamble. "We stand unalterably," it states, "for maintaining at home, both in state and in nation, our constitutional liberties and the orderly processes of the three co-ordinate branches of government." Herein is epitomized the rock basis of the way of life we have developed over a century and a half of incomparable free government, and that the Republican party of Maryland rededicates itself to the premise is something to be taken not only as a matter of course but as an occasion for the utmost pride and wholehearted support.

That support is found urgent today in Maryland by reason of the fact that a revolutionary plan has been proposed by the present War Defense Council of Maryland, with Governor O'Connor's approval—doubtless at his instigation—by which a committee named by the governor would receive power to suspend any Maryland law or laws, and not merely some as was the case in World War I. And on that dangerous proposal the program takes a vigorous stand, which, in view of the evils of dictatorship we have been witnessing over the world, deserves the enthusiastic applause and unwavering support of all citizens of the Free State.

"This unnecessary, revolutionary and unconstitutional abdication of power granted by the sovereign people to their General Assembly," it states, "should be opposed at every stage by all citizens, Republicans and Democrats alike, in and out of the Assembly."

And why? Simply because of the necessity, as set forth in the preamble, of upholding the organic law upon which our freedoms depend; but also for the sufficient practical reason that "any war emergency not provided for in the 1943 regular session can be dealt with in forty-eight hours without extra cost to the state by a called special session of the General Assembly."

Much food for serious thought is to be found in the policy program and there will be much to say about it as the work of the legislature proceeds. But, next in importance perhaps to the need for thwarting the grab of dictatorial power through the proposed War Council measure, is that of providing long-needed relief for the taxpayers of the state.

To this end, the program reiterates the advocacy by the party and its gubernatorial nominee, Theodore R. McKeldin, during the recent campaign of repealing the existing iniquitous state income tax, or suspending it during the next biennial period. It was pointed out in the campaign that heavy additional federal income taxes imposed by the war program would make such relief imperative. But that reason is all the more cogent now because, not only are the federal taxes heavily increased upon those hitherto paying them, but, as the policy program notes, additional millions of the lower income groups are now obliged to pay federal income taxes, of whom almost half the population of Maryland is included.

Even should the state income tax remain—and the state administration will move heaven and earth to retain it, as indicated by the governor's message—it should be revised so as to remove its several oppressive features, as this newspaper along with the party has long been contending. Here the policy program is specific. "In the event that the income tax law be not repealed," it states, "to the extent that it remains in force, so amend the law that credit allowances be made for the payment of federal income taxes; also for the taxation of capital gains as under the federal laws; for the taxing of low unearned incomes on the same basis as earned incomes, and for allowances for medical care, insurance premiums and dependents over 18 years of age in school or college; also for some sort of pay-as-you-go plan of payment as proposed under the so-called Ruml plan proposed for federal income taxes."

The News is glad to note these suggested improvements, virtually all of which it has advocated, particularly the credits for students and the other exceptional obligations.

Sensible also is the recommendation submitted as a counterpart to the repeal or suspension of the income tax which urges the "abolition as soon as practicable, by constitutional amendment and by law, of the tax imposed by the state on real estate and personalty, including automobiles, and thereby conform to the practice of most of the progressive states..." The inclusion of automobiles is particularly appropriate because, as noted, thousands of them have been immobilized by reason of scanty rubber and gasoline, yet are taxed a hundred per cent of their assessed value; and millions more now have been immobilized by a sweeping order effective at noon today. The recommendation for constitutional amendment is particularly good. That is where tax limitations should be provided.

The General Assembly could do nothing better than by following this advice for taxpayer relief. Governor O'Connor has sensed the need for such action, and has suggested in his message to the legislature the advisability of reducing this burdensome tax. He was not specific beyond noting that he would recommend a retroactive credit on 1942 incomes and a reduction for the next two years, the extent of which is not indicated, wherein is implied a determination to hang to as much of it as possible with the granting of temporary relief. However, it is not fair to judge his tax plan on the generalized statement made in his message for the reason that he indicated therein his intention of submitting a definite plan on the subject later on in the session. He will, of necessity, be obliged to recognize in it the unmistakable protest against the existing tax registered by the people at the polls last November resulting largely from Republican pressure, wherein again is to be noted the need and the duty of a constructive minority opposition.

Not a Great Document

GOVERNOR O'CONNOR'S MESSAGE to the General Assembly was largely a transmittal of reports from the various departments of the state government. Certainly it cannot be catalogued as a great document of state in keeping with the momentous problems devolving upon the state government by reason of the war emergency.

Thus is borne out a declaration made in the 1942 Republican state platform, which a good many supposed was a bit too partisan. "The review of his administration by Governor O'Connor in his recent radio speeches," it stated, "seems largely a bookkeeping report and a statement of routine administration prescribed by the accumulated laws," largely resulting from the administrations of four preceding Democratic and Republican governors, Harrington, Ritchie, Goldsborough and Nice.

Careful perusal of the message serves to corroborate and even to emphasize that declaration.

When Americans boasted that this country could feed the world, they didn't expect to be taken literally.

Who's the Tough Bird?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Once in a while I meet a Tough Bird. I meet a fellow who was once in prison and is still pretending he is a bad one. I hear that Tough Bird use underworld phrases. He calls a detective a "dick," an attorney a "mouthpiece" or a "lip," a purse a "poke," a gun a "rod," a knife a "shiv." He talks out of the corner of his mouth and looks around corners before he turns them. . . . I listen to him and after a while I decide that he isn't half as tough as he thinks he is.

He's just trying to impress you with his toughness. He's no crook. He's no bad man. He's just TALKING. He went to prison once and once was enough. If you want to know the real truth about him, you'd know that he has kept a job and is working regularly and paying his board bill and even wishing occasionally that he might marry and settle down and "have kids."

But on the outside he's a "Tough Bird." He's grandiosely putting on an act. He wants you to believe he knows the inside of every robbery that's been pulled in the last six months. He knows who did them, he hints he was in on some of them. A desperate fellow who works in dark streets and tip-tops his way through houses where honest folk are snoring. Vain and boastful because somehow in his childhood when he was about three feet tall, somebody put the idea into his head that he should be a Tough Kid who lived on Hardboiled Alley, in the very last house.

I know, of course, that there are many Tough Birds in this world who do dirty and desperate things but the ones who are so eager to have you know they are tough—aren't really tough at all.

They aren't half as dangerous as the fellows who intend to make a million in ANY way he can and tear down anybody who stands in his way.

Not half as mean as the sweet person who repeats or invents ghastly gossip just to be "interesting."

Not half as treacherous as the worker in an office who doublecrosses his best friend to get a better job.

Those are the real crooks, pretending they are fine when they are bad, just as the other fellow pretends to be crooked when he isn't.

Mallon Presents A Case History Of Fuel Oil Mess

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—TheThe outgoing Mr. Leon Henderson and the remaining fuel oil rationers have not the slightest idea what they have done to the average individual home owner.

Their statements before the Senate Oil-Gas committee rang the same old notes about "not being tough enough," "people not co-operating," and "stronger rationing to come."

They are all good, genial, conscientious men, but they are thinking in terms of national supplies, area quotas, and soulless statistics. They simply do not understand the human problems they have put on the average man.

Personal case histories are scarce. No one furnishes them in the debate, but I will tell mine and prove it with documentary evidence, if it will bring these officials any nearer a realization of the human problem in which they have involved the nation.

An Average Case

It is an average case, not nearly as bad as many but it shows such a condition of confusion and misunderstanding as almost to defy solution.

I spent some hours filling out their long blanks and measuring the square footage of each room of my house last fall. OPA announcements said they intended to allot two-thirds as much oil this year as last.

Their publicity men gave out fancy stories about how Mr. Henderson's smart young men had worked out a complex formula based on weather for the last ten years so everyone would get his proper share.

But when my coupons came back, the cut was fifty percent. My last year's bills showed consumption of 4,325 gallons in the mildest Washington winter of a decade, but my allocation was 2,200 gallons for what is proving to be the worst winter in the same period.

Right there, I found Mr. Henderson's smart young men were not smart for me. Instead of measuring cubic footage of rooms, as every heating man does when installing a furnace, they measured floor space only.

Ceilings Make Difference

The people in our neighborhood with low ceilings, in come cases, got more oil than they needed, whereas the man with high ceilings did not get enough to run the winter at any temperature. Studio living rooms, with two story ceilings, left some dwellers with a pittance.

My oil dealer informed me there was no use going to the rationing board even today. It was a madhouse. As late as this, it had not been able to allocate coupons to all the people, so there was no need to seek reconsideration. Clerks had largely volunteered, were untrained and the average of mistakes was high.

Luckily, I had a vacation in December, so I closed the house for a month and went away to use the heat of others. Coming back, I felt comforted by announcements from OPA that all Washington dealers had enough oil, although I could hardly reconcile this with the news in the same paper that the British embassy had no heat for several days.

My dealer thereupon informed me the value of my coupons had been cut ten percent and anyway he would have no oil for "three or four days," although there were only ten gallons in my tank. The only other oil dealer in town had plenty, but OPA has issued a regulation preventing him from serving any except his old customers. The government had prevented him from serving me.

Dealer's Problem Worse

There I learned the problem of the oil dealer was worse than mine. Less than one-fifth of his drivers generally showed up on Monday, because increased pay allowed them

JAP BLASTER

Capt. Thomas Leigh Gatch (above) of Annapolis, commanded the American battleship that destroyed thirty-two Jap planes before the enemy stopped trying to sink his ship. Capt. Gatch was struck by a fragment of the only bomb to strike the ship but was able to take his ship back to sea less than three weeks later.

NO STAR BOARDERS

to take more time off without losing salary.

OPA had descended upon them with new regulations requiring detailed daily reports of mileage, gasoline, tire life, hours driven, concerning each truck, and it was almost impossible for the dealer to answer the telephone, much less to maintain an orderly business.

So I closed off all except a couple of rooms in the house, waiting until I reach the last gallon of oil before seeking other shelter, although all hotels, apartments, and boarding houses in this locality are filled to overflowing.

Threats Issued

Even then, as I waited, the afternoon editions carried government warnings urging more conversion to coal and threatened dire consequences unless apartment houses did so. I became acquainted with the "conversion to coal" song of Mr. Ickes last year when I tried to convert my furnace. My furnace dealer informed me:

"Oh, that's just bunk the government is handing out. You would have to get a whole new furnace and no furnaces have been manufactured. We simply cannot get them, or even get conversion grants."

His desk now is stacked two feet high with emergency orders for heating repair in homes where furnaces consumed the last drop of oil and blew out. A radiator in the home of one of his customers blew out the wall under such circumstances.

Said customer went to the rationing board and raised hell, threatened to sue the government, but he got no more oil and the government apparently seemed unworried.

Typical Situation

This is the story of my community, and this is my personal experience, briefly told, but dramatizing a situation of greater seriousness in every community in the land. I do not mind particularly, but the next time I see an announcement by a government official telling me not to use too much fuel oil, I am going to take the newspaper that carries it right down to his office and make him eat it.

P. S.—The late afternoon editions have just arrived with an announcement from the local fuel director, Mr. Whitney Leary, stating fuel dealers have plenty of oil and warning people not to order more until their tanks get down to one-fourth full—and me with two gallons and no prospects of oil "for three or four days." I am leaving for Mr. Leary's office with a copy of the paper.

The honey creeper is a small bird of tropical and subtropical America, especially abundant in the West Indies. They have very brilliant plumage, blue being especially common.

In head-hunting tribes in past times an enemy's head served as a war trophy. A warrior's standing with his tribe and his chances of obtaining a desirable bride would be regulated by the number of heads he had taken.

The American Legion national charter was granted by Congress in 1919.

The volume of talk about peace—and plans for a post-war world—is forehanded. If the forehandedness is to be complete, it should include something understood little by foreigners and not wholly by our own people. This is, that no peace treaty, and no arrangement for post-war, can be valid until after it is ratified by two-thirds of the United States Senate—that is, by at least sixty-four out of the ninety-six senators.

Failure of the world to understand this accords in part for the failure of President Wilson, after the Great War, to bring about the kind of world organization he desired, the League of Nations. And that condition—the high hopes held out, the dreams inspired in masses of peoples, followed by disillusionment—was the cause of as much grief and bitterness as has ever flowed from a single cause. Repetition of it now may be avoided if the world is made as fully aware of the function of the United States Senate, as it is of the projects now being given out.

Mark Sullivan

After Wilson had been engaged in Paris for some three months, thirty-nine members of the United States Senate united in a public round robin, calling attention to the fact that nothing Wilson did could be valid if it were opposed by more than one-third of the Senate—and thirty-nine was materially more than a third. This impressed the statesmen with whom Wilson was dealing at Paris. While they were probably familiar with the function of the Senate, according to the American Constitution, they had rather taken it for granted that whatever Wilson did at Paris would be ratified at Washington.

Two Purposes

In the Great War, after the fighting ended with a truce, Wilson went to Paris for a peace conference. There, with the statesmen of the other Allies, he set about a purpose which included two things. One was the ordinary business of a peace conference, to write a treaty, bringing the war to a formal end. The other purpose was to set up a permanent post-war world organization, the League of Nations, embodied in a document Wilson called the "Covenant."

After Wilson had been engaged in Paris for some three months, thirty-nine members of the United States Senate united in a public round robin, calling attention to the fact that nothing Wilson did could be valid if it were opposed by more than one-third of the Senate—and thirty-nine was materially more than a third. This impressed the statesmen with whom Wilson was dealing at Paris. While they were probably familiar with the function of the Senate, according to the American Constitution, they had rather taken it for granted that whatever Wilson did at Paris would be ratified at Washington.

Influence Diminished

Among other effects, the Senate round robin diminished Wilson's influence at Paris, gave strength to his adversaries. Upon the world generally, not familiar with the American constitution, the Senate round robin had an effect of stunned surprise.

Wilson undertook to checkmate the Senate by a device of tying into one document the peace treaty and the covenant of the League of Nations. He knew the Senate, reflecting popular sentiment, would be eager to get a peace treaty effected, so that our soldiers might come home, and the war be otherwise liquidated. Relying upon this, Wilson said:

"When that treaty comes back gentlemen [in the Senate] will find the covenant not only in it, but so many threads of the treaty tied to the covenant that you cannot dissect the covenant from the treaty without destroying the whole vital structure."

This defiance by Wilson strengthened the senators in their determination. Congress undertook to bring the state of war technically to an end by a simple joint resolution. Wilson vetoed it as a disgrace to American honor. There followed tragic events, not necessary to recite here.

Three Things This Time

In the present case, we shall have not two things but three. There will be first a peace treaty in the ordinary sense, bringing the war to an end. This the Senate will be eager to ratify. There will be, second, some kind of proposal for the preservation of peace, whether like the League of Nations or something else. This the Senate will probably be willing to ratify—we have learned much since the League of Nations failed. But there will be, apparently, according to proposals coming from some sources, a third thing—an arrangement having to do with the economic organization of the world. This, the Senate will scrutinize carefully.

The thing for the world to bear in mind is that no international agreement, in any of the three categories, can become effective unless it is so satisfactory to so large a proportion of the American people that the Senate, reflecting the people, will ratify it by at least a two-thirds majority.

Half a Step Forward

From the Pittsburgh Press

On the theory that any relief is better than none, word that the federal Bureau of the Budget will be charged with "simplifying, eliminating and streamlining" all questionnaires from government agencies is good news. That is tempered somewhat, however, by the statement of a bureau official that there would be no immediate sharp drop in the number of questionnaires—that, in fact, "perhaps the peak has not yet been reached."

No doubt, under modern statistical methods, accumulation of data concerning business and production and even plain citizens serves many useful purposes. The aggravating angles have been frequent duplication of questions and the feeling that so many agencies were accumulating so much "confidential" information about so many people that none of it remained confidential. The constant quizzing has been particularly offensive to small businesses which lack time, corps of experts and facilities for amassing and relaying all the information sought.

Now the bureau says the best assurance it can give for the future is that a bureau-approved questionnaire "and the program of which it is a part will have been reviewed carefully and approved for a necessary national purpose."

That is reassuring, no doubt, to every patriotic citizen. But we think there'll be lots more room for improvement. What a professional statistician may consider "necessary," and what a harassed and worried business man may find feasible or even possible, may be two different things.

London Criticism On North Africa Is Termed Unjust

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—An American commander—Gen. Eisenhower—is being confronted with the most difficult job that any Allied chieftain has had in this war. Unlike any other man in the field for the United Nations, Gen. Eisenhower has had to deal with a civil population of 16,000,000 and occupy the most strategic positions and at the same time carry on an offensive battle against the enemy.

Unfortunately for the United Nations, most of the dealings with civilian populations have been in the hands of the Axis commanders, for the war has been a series of retreats—out of the treaty ports of China, out of the Philippines, out of the Dutch East Indies, out of Malaya and Burma, out of Norway, out of Holland, out of Poland, and out of Belgium and France.

Gen. Eisenhower has been given the first opportunity to turn the tables. The Axis commanders make short shrift of opposition, especially from local politicians or local elements that appear contentious. The American commander has been patient and restrained. He has faced a difficult situation in trying to straighten out the tangled problems of the Free French and the North African government. He has had to deal with the military problems of land, sea and air. He has had command of British troops and British sea and air forces, as well as American units.

Co-operation Excellent

Under the circumstances, critics who don't think he has acted quickly enough or that he hasn't worked miracles in reconciling differences among the French might better be patient. There are plenty of elements in the world perhaps askance at an American general who is in command of an Allied army, but those elements are not military or naval. The finest kind of co-operation has been given by Adm. Cunningham, of the British Navy, and by the British Air and Army chiefs.

But back in London some sort of long-range criticism has begun which is not understood here. It seems to center in the matter of censorship, though this appears to be a vehicle rather than a reason for airing some dissatisfaction. Maybe the London critics are influenced too much by some over-zealous Free French adherents who seem to wish to undermine Gen. Eisenhower's position. The following two press dispatches by United Press from London in the last twenty-four hours are a bit puzzling. The first was as follows:

Censorship Blamed

"The 'London Times' charged today that delays and censorship of news from North Africa have encouraged criticism of Allied policies on that front. A 'Times' editorial expressed hope that the British press and public would benefit by 'prompter and fuller' information on North African affairs from the appointment of Harold MacMillan as resident British minister to Allied African Headquarters." Here is the second dispatch:

"The London Daily Mail, urging faster action in Tunisia, said that the Russians need Allied help to open a spring offensive. 'Only when we have cleaned up North Africa shall we be in a position to open a second front in Europe,' the Daily Mail said. 'If spring finds us still bogged down in Tunisia, the enemy will have won valuable time and a considerable victory. We must control the Mediterranean before we begin to beat the Axis and we must knock the Axis from Tunisia before we can control the Mediterranean.'"

This sort of pressure implies that our American commander isn't doing his job the way he ought to. As a matter of fact, what has been accomplished in less than three months by the American expeditionary forces, aided by the British and French units, is truly remarkable from the standpoint of United Nations progress on the offensive in this war.

Doing His Best

The objectives outlined by the London newspaper editorials were well understood from the beginning, and there is not particular point in reminding the American commander of them, since he is doing everything humanly possible to fight an offensive, maintain peace among the French factions and help quiet the civilian population whose economy has been upset by the new invasion that cuts off all trade with the Axis countries.

Gen. Eisenhower has the complete confidence of the president and of the joint chiefs of staff of the United Nations, and the sniping campaign begun in London does not appear, at this end at least, to be constructive or calculated to accelerate the movement forward. Our rate of progress has been phenomenal, and delays lately have been due to bad weather, which has made it difficult to build up flying fields, and to scant transportation facilities overland to supply our far-flung forces as well as the civilian population. When spring comes, it will be time enough to appraise the progress made in terms of global war. This is just early January.

KNUDSEN IS CREDITED WITH BOOSTING U. S. ARMS PRODUCTION

By WILLIAM F. FRYE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The chief trouble shooter of the army production program, Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen, is credited by his boss with lifting military production by at least ten per cent.

"I suppose," said Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, "that General Knudsen spends two-thirds of his time trouble-shooting. It's production-line trouble-shooting, the practical solution of immediate problems on the spot."

Knudsen himself, reluctant to discuss his own activities, was quite willing to talk about the production job done by American industry, commenting:

"In this blitzkrieg era of ours, it's the inventory that tells the story. And as far as I can figure, we're producing about twice as much as anybody else."

Patterson credited Knudsen with single-handedly raising production at least a tenth, improved manufacturing techniques in most major war industries, originating the substitution of materials for critical items such as making shell casings of steel instead of brass.

Knudsen recalled that many manufacturers were reluctant to convert their plants to war production in 1940, but said that conversion was complete now.

Meat Rationing Is Explained By Miss Ruehl

Demonstrations in Preparing Food Are Given at Club Meeting

"Our present meat rationing provides for 130 pounds per person per year, and the average yearly consumption from 1931 to 1940 in this country was 131 pounds," Miss Christine Ruehl, home service advisor of the Potomac Edison company, told members of the four Health for Victory clubs, sponsored by employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at the meeting yesterday afternoon at the Queen City hotel, when she spoke on "Meat Shortages."

From the standpoint of the body requirements, she said, only four ounces of meat, or first class protein, are needed each day, or twenty-eight ounces a week, and the adult rationing cards allow forty ounces a week.

To further allay any concern on the part of her audience, Miss Ruehl compared the rationing of meat in this country with that of the European countries, where Belgium receives five, Holland nine, Germany twelve and five tenths, and England sixteen ounces.

Demonstrations Are Given

Miss Ruehl described and demonstrated using meat in combination with other foods in order to make the most of rationing. Her demonstration to prove how low cost cuts can be made delicious and tender, included pork liver combined with onions, flank steak with dressing and heavy seasoning, lamb stew and pot roast with vegetables.

In speaking on the two methods of cooking meat, Miss Ruehl explained that moist heat cooking, which always includes the use of a covered utensil, is braising, stewing and simmering. There are twenty-nine different cuts of meat on the carcass of beef that should be prepared by one of these methods, which are long time cooking operations and employ relative amounts of liquid, she said.

The dry heat method uses no covered utensils and no liquids, according to the speaker. Roasting a prime rib roast was done as an example of this in the oven in an uncovered utensil. If the utensil is covered steam is created and immediately the method changes to the moist heat method; she said. Other examples of dry heat cooking are broiling and pan-broiling and these should be limited to the better cuts of the loin of the beef, which she said have the taste and tenderness that make dry heat cooking practical.

Meat Is Important

Meat is important in the everyday diet, she continued, because it is a rich source of phosphorus and iron and the B group vitamins.

Considerable emphasis was stressed on the grading of meats by the United States department of Agriculture, which include prime, choice, good, commercial and utility. She suggested members look for the markings stamped on each cut and said if it is marked "good" they can be sure of a satisfactory cut of meat.

The Car Department group with Mrs. C. M. Scott, chairman, was in charge of the meeting which was attended by more than 150 members. The January meal planning guide with lunch box suggestions and menus were distributed.

The next meeting will be held at 2:30 o'clock January 27.

Parents Should Learn Best Ways To Control Child

Definite Program Should Be Planned, Dr. Myers Asserts

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Many parents wish to control the young child without constant punishment and scolding. Not all parents, however, are so frank as the mother who wrote the following:

"Dear Dr. Myers:—We have boy 21 months old and during these 21 months neither my husband nor I have learned to handle him. Neither of us knew anything about children but we thought we'd know from instinct just how to go about bringing him up happily. None of our ideas seemed to work. We just can't make him mind unless we spank him. That lasts only until he decides he wants to get into or do something else. It's just spanking and scolding all day and every day and it's making me very cross and nervous."

"Sometimes we even regret having him, but when he puts his arms around us and kisses us or tries a new word or does some new trick we're sorry we ever had such thoughts. We really aren't sorry we have him; we just want to learn to be good parents so we can have a good boy and still have his love and respect when he's grown. Hoping you can help us. I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp begging you to write me."

I did, assuring her that it is possible to guide a child well without scolding and with very little punishment of any sort. Here are excerpts from my letter to her.

Must Plan A Program
At a quiet, relaxed time, you and your husband should sit down together and plan a program. Dwell on this simple principle: You should make painful to the young child only a very few things he must never do, and pleasant many times more things he may do or you want him to do. Don't, therefore, punish him to make him do things. Persuade him, with eternal patience.

Rule out scolding and a sharp voice as a means of control. Agreeing on a few things this tot must never do, such as running into the street and a few objects he must not touch, such as the floor lamp, decide that every time he does one of these forbidden things he shall get instant pain, preferably a spanking, when you will say NO just in a moderate tone. Remember it must be instant or not at all, and there must be no exceptions. Therefore, one of you parents be right by the side of this tot always when he may be tempted to do these things, till he learns to avoid them permanently. Merely intercept him to keep him from other dangers.

Other Suggestions

Always when he must be punished for a definite forbidden act, have present or in mind attractive objects or activities he can turn to with pleasure.

As soon as he will stay where he is put, abandon spanking and for it substitute assigning him to sit where you can see him for a definite time (say twenty minutes).

During the many times when he is doing right be liberal with affection and approval. Don't hesitate to cuddle and fondle him. Read to him often. Listen attentively as he talks and answer his questions. Learn to enjoy his scribbling, drawing, coloring, play with blocks, inventions with words or things.

Let both parents strive to be calm and cheerful, always working for poise and self control. I have prepared a selected list of books and pamphlets written to help parents guide the infant, child and adolescent happily, to be had without cost to you, by writing me at 235 East Forty-Fifth Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What do you consider the best way to teach a tot to avoid playing with matches and, he has once started playing with matches and building fires, what is a good cure?

A. Teach the tot early the meaning of NO and include matches as one of the things he must never have or touch, seeing that he gets an instant spanking when he does. Once he has practiced at setting fires, closely supervise him. Have Dad take the lad to a safe open field and have the youngster start fires continuously for several hours, hoping it will create a distaste for the activity. In the meantime, build him up with more love and affection and more interest in creative play.

State Gas Supply Is Affected by Illicit Traffic

BALTIMORE, Jan. 6 (AP)—Gasoline supplies in Maryland are being drained because of widespread bootlegging and illicit traffic in gasoline rationing coupons, Leo H. McCormick, state director of the Office of Price Administration, declares.

The OPA director said he had instructed the forty-seven war price and rationing boards of the state to curtail further supplementary gasoline allotments.

He declined to reveal the gasoline inventory in Maryland, but said further conservation measures must be effected in the rationing program which has already cut gasoline consumption in the state by twenty-one per cent.

He termed bootleggers of gasoline and handlers of illicit ration coupons "peddlers of the lifeblood of the nation at war."

Taxes in Nutshell:

You'll Pay Plenty, but There ARE Some Bright Spots in Tax PictureBy ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Features Writer

WASHINGTON—Sundry taxpayers, including business and pleasure travelers, telephone users, camera fans and cabaret patrons, are already getting a taste of Uncle Sam's new tax medicine, in addition to the Victory tax, which arrived with the new year.

Increased excise levies on telephone tolls, train, airplane and bus transportation, cigars and cigarettes, distilled spirits and wines went into effect on November 1. Also a tax of 4 cents a short ton on coal transportation and of 3 per cent on freight and express shipments.

Amateur photographers are hit by a sharp advance in the tax on cameras weighing not more than 4 pounds, the levy going up from 10 to 25 per cent. The tax on photographic films, plates and sensitized paper has been increased from 10 to 15 per cent of the price. Hep cats, and perhaps, devotees of the old-fashioned waltz, should be interested in a new provision of the law which closed a loophole in the cabaret tax. The 5 per cent cabaret tax is levied on the amount you pay for admission, refreshments or service even if no increase is made in the charges by reason of furnishing dancing or other entertainment.

The federal charge on telephone tolls is now 20 per cent of the toll. The old tax was 6 per cent on calls costing under 25 cents and a nickel for each 50 cents of higher-priced calls. The rate of tax on local telephone service has been increased from 6 to 10 per cent.

The tax on railroad, bus and airplane tickets and for special seating or sleeping accommodations in connection with transportation has been raised from 5 to 10 per cent. But there are a few bright spots, believe it or not, in the generally dismal tax outlook for 1943.

The most outstanding bit of relief is designed to alleviate the burden on those who have had to pay heavy medical bills. The new law allows a limited deduction for the medical care of the taxpayer, his wife and his dependents. It includes amounts paid for accident and health insurance as well as payments for doctors, dentists, nurses, hospital facilities and medical supplies.

However, only those medical expenses which exceed 5 per cent of the net income of the taxpayer are deductible.

The maximum deduction allowed for medical expenses is $2,500 in the case of a head of a family or a husband and wife filing joint returns. In all other cases the top deduction is $1,250.

Another innovation is the elimination of the requirement that returns be made under oath. A simple affirmation as to correctness of the return will take the place of swearing to returns before a notary public or a similar officer.

The new law also reduces the burden somewhat on persons in the armed forces. Married soldiers and sailors in active service are allowed an exclusion from gross income of $300 and single men an exemption of $250. The exemption is limited to persons below the grade of commissioned officers.

Girl Is Foolish
If She's Forced Into MarriageBy BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous
Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Copyright, 1942,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I have a letter before me that states a current problem of many. "I never was what you'd call head over heels in love," writes George, "I graduated in the same class in high school and went around a good deal together that summer and drifted into an if-and-when understanding. We were never actually engaged but he was my boy friend and I was his girl friend. He was undecided as to a business or profession."

"When he was drafted I felt terribly cut up, the way any girl would feel when she sees the boy she thinks more of than any other boy go into the armed forces."

A "Different" Man
"Two weeks ago he returned. He'd seen a good deal of hard service, some on the West Coast and he was so different. Before he went away we used to talk things over. He was reasonable and considerate. I hardly recognized the man who has some home to me in uniform—he's boisterous, assertive and demands his way in everything. He wants me to marry him immediately so that we'll have some time together before his furlough expires and he is to go overseas," she continues.

"It would be like marrying a stranger. He never was a 'do-as-I-say-or-else' type. When I told him that I was not ready to be married and didn't want to marry him 'til the war is over, he became violent, threatened me and will not take 'no' for an answer. My mother has tried to reason with him but it's no use," she adds.

"At last, partly through fear to avoid scenes and because his actions distressed my mother, I agreed to marry him, but I don't want to do it. In fact, I'd rather run away to some place where he couldn't find me and not come back 'til he goes overseas. It seems foolish for an American girl to be cowardly. But that's what I am with George. He frightens me," concludes "R."

Miss Fairfax's Answer

My answer to her is:

R, you'd be very foolish to let any young man in the frame of mind you describe George, shanghai you into matrimony. And please stop long enough to consider what life would be with a man you married through fear. He is not prepared to make a home for you, not having decided on a profession or really what he wanted to do with his life.

If you were madly in love with him and felt you couldn't live without him, a war marriage might be the thing under the circumstances. But you describe your feelings for him as lukewarm, you were never actually engaged, and it seems foolish to yield to a young man's bossing and bullying you into doing something for which you feel a positive aversion.

If you have a brother, a guardian or some man, an old friend of your family who could reason with George, it might be a better solution than running away.

At one time Spain claimed the sole right to navigate in the North Pacific and issued a prohibition against other nations trading in those waters.

300 Black Bass
For State Streams

BALTIMORE, Jan. 6 (P).—The fish supply in Maryland streams will be replenished by 3,000 bass being hauled from the Northeast river, E. Lee LeCompte, state game warden, said today.

The bass are adult brood stock and are being transferred from the brackish northeast river to the state hatcheries at Lewistown, Frederick county. When the weather is suitable they will be moved to fresh water streams. The bass weigh from one half pound to six pounds.

The large number of fish could be transported this year because of weather conditions, LeCompte said. Last year only 200 of the bass were purchased.

"Thanks to the Yanks"

Think hard, Mr. Murray!... Snapped here is Martin H. Murray of New Bedford, Mass., trying hard to answer his question and send his nephew at Fort Bragg 2,000 Camels. He got the answer. And his nephew got the smokes.

Here's Mrs. Willford C. Long, of Portland, Oregon, very happy over the fact that she's given the right answer to one of Bob Hawk's questions. A certain officer in the Army Medical Corps overseas will be happily surprised with 2,000 Camels.

Here's the Duffle Bag into which the Camels go when the contestant fails to answer the question correctly. The contents of the Duffle Bag, after the show, are sent to various service centers for free distribution to the Yanks. Even when you can't answer, you still send thanks to the Yanks. Over 585,000 Camels have been sent at this moment of going to press.

"...your dealer will send Camels for you to any Yank you want to thank... son, brother, sweetheart, pal, anybody anywhere."

"MAYBE you've been in the audience of Camel's new 'Thanks to the Yanks' program in the Columbia Broadcasting Studio in New York. Maybe you were even in the show. Or maybe you heard it on the air."

"Anyway, you probably know that when a quiz question I give out is answered correctly, we send up to 3,000 Camels to any service man the contestant names. Everybody has a lot of fun—in addition to providing soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen around the globe a lot of free smoking fun—with Camels, their favorite cigarette. Tune in this Saturday night."

"But...you can send your thanks to the Yanks—show or no show! Your dealer has complete mailing instructions for all branches of the service. See him today and thank a Yank with a carton of Camels."

Local CAP Pilots To Resume Study Friday Night

Captain Arthur Lyem Says Patrol To Continue Training Missions

Cumberland flights of Civil Air Patrol Squadron No. 331, will resume their weekly meetings Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the Civil Service room, third floor of the post office building, according to Captain Arthur Lyem, commander.

"Practice flights and cross country air missions are being flown as usual on Sunday afternoons from the Municipal Airport," Captain Lyem said. "It is hoped that the squadron may soon use the new airport," he added.

In addition to the Cumberland unit, Hagerstown, Taneytown and Frederick flights, under the command of Squadron 331, are also progressing according to schedule. Captain Lyem, explained as he discussed the squadron's training.

Several qualified pilots and planes within this territory have already been assigned to active duty to relieve army pilots and to carry out flight missions previously performed by the United States Army Air Corps. These CAP fliers patrol over land and sea areas and the local CAP is reported doing a splendid job in training CAP pilots for this type of work.

Young, appointed on November 5, died in Annapolis after serving twenty years as clerk of the court of appeals.

MODES OF TRANSPORTATION ON ALCAN HIGHWAY

This picture was taken on the newly-opened Alcan Highway which stretches between Alaska and Canada in the Northwest. These three Army trucks rolling along with supplies for our armies to the north form a fine contrast with the sled being hauled by dogs—the old mode of transportation in this area. Mercury drops to a cruel sixty below in these parts, and Summer temperatures rise as high as ninety degrees.

rear to the upper left-hand corner of the old plates.

The State of Illinois will issue new plates this year, but they will be made of fibre impregnated with plastics. They will be slightly thicker than usual, but otherwise will conform generally to those of previous years.

South Carolina asked that one 1942 plate be turned in, then removed the paint, rolled out the embossing, and re-embossed and painted the job. The new plate shows signs of the 1942 inscriptions.

Arkansas will use 1942 plates and will issue a sticker for the windshield. The sticker and the serial number appearing thereon are large enough to be visible at some distance.

Florida will issue metal tabs for 1942 plates with the same background but with numerals in yellow. A round sticker also is being issued for the windshield.

Ohio will use 1942 plates and a red windshield sticker. The latter will bear 1943 numerals and 1942 license number together with a short description of the automobile.

Kentucky will use its 1942 plates with a windshield stamp as evidence of renewal for passenger cars, commercial and farm trucks. New plates will be issued to motorcycles, dealers and "in transit" and these will be just the reverse of the 1942 plates—black inscription on aluminum.

Wisconsin will attach a metal tab to validate them for 1943. Only one metal tab will be furnished, and this must be attached to the rear plate. The front plate must be removed and conserved. Registration stickers also will be issued for display on the windshield.

The windshield sticker idea also has been adopted by Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Iowa, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah and Washington.

Local Clubs Will Hold Rally Here In February

Girls 4-H, Boys Federation and Extension Club To Participate

A rally will be sponsored jointly by the Boys Federation, the Girls 4-H Trail and the Junior Extension Club the last week in February to inform the public of the activities of the clubs.

Plans were made and demonstrations suggested at the meeting of the Junior Extension club held last evening at the home of Royce Johnson, Willow Brook road. The fact that it was not a social but an educational project was stressed.

Americans Shell

—fighter planes of the type used by the navy and marine corps—engaged the Japanese planes, shot down four certainly and possibly two others. The remaining Jap planes turned tail and fled. It was not clear whether the American fighters were land-based, were catapulted from cruisers, or were carrier-borne.

Flying Fortresses attacked the Japanese cruiser at Buin, Bougainville island. They were accompanied by Lockheed lightning fighters which got into a battle with twenty-five Japanese planes, both Zeros and float-type biplanes. Three of the enemy were shot down and two others probably downed. The two American planes were lost in this action.

The Japanese transport hit by bombs was attacked by Flying Fortresses in the Shortland Island area.

Nine Ships Hit

All these attacks, together with an air raid on Rabaul, in which General Douglas MacArthur reported that nine ships were hit, fell into a general pattern of operations designed to upset an apparently impending Japanese move in the Southwest Pacific.

For some weeks, the Japanese have been reported assembling surface ships at various points in the area. If they have in mind a renewed large scale attempt to recapture Guadalcanal, they would count on air support from the Munda base which they have been developing for weeks despite frequent American attacks. The raid by surface ship thus was designed to damage the base so heavily that it would be of limited use in any such Japanese effort.

In addition to the attack by surface ships, the airfield was bombed yesterday by medium bombers. The navy said the results could not be observed.

HE THOUGHT IT WAS LUNCHTIME

This tiny hummingbird, wings beating sixty strokes per second, was stopped in action by a speedray camera shooting at 1/30,000 of a second, as it hovered in mid-air over a tiny rubber doll. The little bird, one of about 500 species housed at the Bronx Zoo, New York City, placed his bill tentatively in the doll's mouth hoping that it would contain food. The birds are fed a mixture of sweetened condensed milk, honey, baby food and water.

Nehring Reported Ousted by Hitler

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 7. (AP)—A roundabout report reached London early today stating that the German army commander in Tunisia, Gen. Walther Nehring, has been replaced.

A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm quoted the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet as saying that General von Arnim had been appointed German commander-in-chief in Tunisia in place of Gen. Nehring.

The report was without immediate confirmation elsewhere.

Gen. von Arnim is relatively little known outside Germany although he has figured from time to time in German reports of the African campaign.

There have been no recent reports abroad of Gen. Nehring's being in disfavor. On the contrary, his forces have presented formidable opposition to the advancing Allies in Tunisia.

gory further." Price Administrator Leon Henderson said. "We can make no predictions at this time. It all depends on the supplies available as winter continues."

"However, every owner of non-dwelling property heated by oil ought to be thinking ahead. He should consider the adjustments he may have to make in operating his building part time, or, in the case of amusement centers, closing altogether, if the emergency increases."

Specifically, the new order prescribes a reduction in rations for period three to fifty per cent of normal by removing coupons from the ration sheets. However, since the value of coupons for the third period was ordered cut by ten per cent last Sunday, the new step reduces the rations for the third period to forty-five per cent of the amount normally used.

Not Brief Emergency. That the emergency is not expected to be brief was proved by OPA's edict that rations for the fourth and fifth heating periods also would be reduced to 50 per cent. However, since no specific gallonage value has been assigned to coupons for those later periods, the exact effect of the cut in terms of normal consumption cannot now be computed, OPA said.

Announcing the latest drastic step to make fuel oil consumption fit the dwindling east coast supply, Henderson said:

"We are going to have to cut deeper into the use of rationed petroleum products in the seventeen eastern states and the District of Columbia. Supplies are not improving. In some districts they are getting worse. This is confirmed by figures supplied the OPO by the petroleum administrator for war."

"Military requirements are up. Transportation of petroleum into the Eastern states is encountering increasing difficulties. Tank car equipment is taking a beating. Some of it is old. Repairs are taking a lot of time out of tank car runs and it is tank cars which carry the great bulk of the petroleum products arriving in the east."

Best Way To Save Food Is To Learn How To Cook, Doctor Recommends

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I live, breathe and have my being in Kansas City, Missouri, and recently an administration bureau selected three families in Kansas

City and tried out on them a week's recipes which included meat rationing and were supposed to be an economical and well-balanced diet. The reactions of the housewives in my native town, after having tried the diet, were as follows: "They made no allowances for leftovers." "It is too expensive." "There was so much meat that I never want to see meat again." It sounds to me a little as though the nutritionists in Washington had been facing a typewriter instead of a kitchen stove. Perhaps what the nutritionists in Washington need is a course in Mr. Squeers' school at Dotheboys Hall. This was in "Nicholas Nickleby." If you remember, and Mr. Squeers' method of teaching was: after a boy spelled botany, "b-o-t-a-n-y," he was told to go out and weed the garden. This gave him a first-hand acquaintance with the actualities of life.

Excellent Cook Book

Before the rest of the United States follows the typewriter nutritionists, I advise them to buy "The Pocket Cook Book" which will cost twenty-five cents. Chapter 1 of this volume is "Cookery Terms and Definitions." After reading it you understand what it is to marinate, to parboil, to braise, to score, to truss and to untruss. Chapter 2 is a "Table of Standard Measurements," chapter 4 is "Safe Substitutions," chapter 7 is "Good Nutrition Simplified," which includes a vitamin primer, a mineral primer, a handy calorie chart and two pages on how to save vitamins and minerals. Chapter 8 is on leftovers and what to do with them; chapter 9 is called "Penny Stretches;" chapter 10 is "Sugar Saving Suggestions;" chapter 11 is "Helps for Reducers." The rest of the book, consisting of 459 pages, is filled with recipes, beginning with appetizers, passing on to beverages, breads, canning, pickling, meats, vegetables, desserts, fish, etc.

Meringue Crown Recipe

For instance, do you know the real way to make meringue crown? This is it: three egg whites six tablespoons sugar; few grains salt. Beat egg whites stiff, but not dry. Gradually add sugar and salt, beating constantly. Pile meringue in ring on greased nine-inch pie plate. Place in shallow pan of warm water. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) twenty minutes. Cool.

P. S. Don't write and ask me where you can get a Pocket Cook Book: you can get the POCKET BOOKS at any drug store, railway station, newsstand, book store or dry goods store in the United States.

Petersburg Boy Develops $6,000 A Year Business

Jack Groves Builds Chick-ken Farm into Big Enterprise

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 6.—Raising chickens may be "egg money" to some folks, but to Jack C. Groves, 18 year old Petersburg high school senior, it's a $6,000 a year business.

H. N. Hansacker, executive secretary of the West Virginia Future Farmers of America, disclosed today that Groves' chicken farm in the past year yielded a net profit of $6,276.28.

Jack's father, the late Harman P. Groves, owned and operated a general merchandise store in Petersburg for many years and purchased a 265 acre farm near here, before his death.

The farm was somewhat run down in soil fertility and cultivation so Jack and his Dad became interested in the poultry business.

In 1939 they built a house for 500 chickens. The next year they constructed another for 3,200 more and in the spring of 1941 they started a two story structure large enough to house 7,200 chickens.

Shortly after starting the new house, Mr. Groves died, leaving his widow and two sons.

The older boy John, assumed responsibility for the store while Jack took charge of the farm, hoping to build up the poultry business and pay for the farm.

Now he has completed the third chicken house and has 10,800 broilers. He plans to make farming his future occupation he says.

Jack, an outstanding FFA member, during the past year raised 35,420 chickens for an average of ninety-six cents per bird, giving him a net profit of eighteen cents each.

That yield a profit of more than $6,000 and with other labor income from the farm brought him a total net profit of $6,276.28. That, despite expenses and debts amount to $27,748.72.

life Technician To Address Association

FROSTBURG, Jan. 6.—The Allegany-Garrett Sportsmen's Association passed a resolution at its monthly meeting last evening in Gunter hotel, directing R. H. Lancaster, secretary, to write to the Allegany county delegation in Annapolis, requesting that the delegation secure all possible information from the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission with reference to the commission's program in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Have Discussed

The passage of the resolution followed a general discussion concerning wildlife projects, sponsored by the Game and Inland Fish Commission, in Western Maryland.

Many members of the local group expressed a desire to have the Allegany county delegation secure all information possible and send one of the delegates of their own selection to Frostburg and address the next meeting of the local group, which will be held Tuesday, February 2.

It was reported at the meeting that the Game and Inland Fish Commission has employed two Wildlife Technicians (biologists), one who has charge of the eastern section of the state and one, Kenneth A. Wilson, who has charge of the western section of Maryland and resides on Bedford Road, near Cumberland.

To Invite Wilson

The association instructed its secretary to contact Mr. Wilson and invite him to attend the next meeting of the Garrett-Allegany group.

Among the speakers at the meeting last evening was Joseph Minke, regional game warden, who was accompanied here by Francis Ruge and Joseph Keating, deputy game wardens.

The treasurers report, submitted by William Stewart showed 110 members had paid their dues for 1943 and the finances of the association were in flourishing condition.

Collection centers will be in Frostburg Teachers college library; Hill's Tobacco store, West Main street; Cook's Grocery store, Bowery street; Myers Market, 25 Grant street and the Frostburg Auto Company, 114 West Main street.

Books left at any of the above centers will be taken to State Teachers college to be assorted and shipped to state headquarters for distribution through the USO to stations where there is the greatest need for reading matter.

The type of books desired are those that would be appreciated by soldiers, sailors and marines who enjoy reading as a means of relaxation, including popular mystery stories, romantic and historical novels.

"Yankee Doodle Dandy" On Its Way to Strand

The year's most spectacular film is on its way to the Strand theater. Yet, spectacular, in its true sense, does not describe Warner's "Yankee Doodle Dandy." The picture has and does several things which make it a fine film, but the warmth of its story makes it great! "Yankee Doodle Dandy" tells the life story of America's greatest way possible—through the songs and plays that he wrote—his vaudeville and legitimate stage career and through the inspiration he gave to others. It is the life story of a man but it is also the life story of show business from the 1880's until today.

James Cagney plays the role of George M. Cohan, and advance reports say that he fits it in every detail. His hoofing is perfect and his talking of songs rather than really singing them, which was always Cohan's way of putting over a number, makes the characterization perfect.

The cast is made up of a fine group of performers. Joan Leslie is cast as Mary, a naive girl who wants to get on the stage. She meets George M. Cohan and he gives her a chance to do a song and dance act. However, he decides she'd make a better wife than a vaudevillian, and she becomes Mrs. George M. Cohan. The Four Cohans, which in the Gay Nineties was famous in every town that was large enough to have a theater, was made up of Jerry Cohan, played by Walter Huston; Nellie, his wife, played by Rosemary DeCamp; Josie George's sister, portrayed by Jeanne Cagney, and George himself. Sam Harris, the theatrical producer who played a very important part in Cohan's life, is portrayed by Richard Whorf. Pay Templeton, who was the country's heart-throb at the turn of the century, is played by alluring Irene Manning.

"Reunion in France" Stars Joan Crawford

As a spoiled, pampered and petted Parisienne society beauty who encounters the brutal realities of the Nazi invasion of France, Joan Crawford delivers one of her best performances in M-G-M's "Reunion in France," seen today at the Maryland theater.

With Miss Crawford teamed with Philip Dorn and John Wayne, the story presents a romantic love story told against a background of intrigue, suspense and ever-present peril. The star is first seen as a haughty, carefree girl who laughs away the forebodings of her sweetheart over France. Later she is torn between love and loathing as she finds her fiancé openly co-operating with the hated invaders. She is forced, however, to turn to him when she endeavors to aid a young American, an escaped prisoner of war, to return to England.

William Powell Stars In Mystery at Garden

Starring in "The Kennel Murder Case," currently at the Garden theater, is William Powell. Released several years ago, the picture has been reissued because of its great popularity, and is said to be one of the most baffling mysteries yet brought to the screen. Mary Astor, Eugene Palette and Ralph Morgan are included in the cast.

Also on the Garden program is "The Mad Martindales," starring Jane Withers. Others in the cast are Marjorie Weaver, Alan Mowbray, Jimmy Lydon and Byron Burr.

"X Marks the Spot" To Open at Embassy

Exciting and suspenseful entertainment is promised patrons of the Embassy theater in "X Marks the Spot," the new Republic mystery melodrama which opens today.

Damian O'Flynn and Helen Parrish are co-starred in the film, heading an excellent supporting cast which includes such favorites as Dick Purcell, Neil Hamilton, Jack La Rue, Anne Jeffreys, Esther Muir, Edna Harris, Joe Kirk, Dick Wessel, and Robert Homans. George Sherman was the associate producer-director.

O'Flynn plays the part of Eddie Delaney, a happy-go-lucky private detective, who learns that his father, police sergeant Tim Delaney (Robert Homans), has been murdered while attempting to prevent a gang of thugs from carrying out a robbery.

Delaney immediately goes to work and with the aid of police lieutenant Decker (Dick Purcell), soon uncovers evidence which tends to prove that the leader of the thugs is Marty Clark, a former gangster who now runs a small dine-and-dance spot.

Air Chains Will Carry Message Of the President

Several More Changes of Programs Are Made in Schedules

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP) — With President Roosevelt scheduled to deliver his message to the new Congress, the Seventy-Eighth, in joint session on Thursday, another of those all-network broadcasts will be set up. Because of war restrictions, time of the transmission was not announced in advance so that it could be incorporated herein.

When NBC gets through changing its Thursday night schedule, it won't exactly be what it used to be. The changes are primarily due to the fact that Bing Crosby's show, an hour for years and years, will be hereafter have only thirty minutes at 9 o'clock. They call it "cutting." However, there recently has been a revival of the trend to reduce hour shows, with two others in CBS to cut Friday night.

Other Changes

Getting back to the NBC schedule, here's how the other changes will go: At 7:30, Bob Burns being moved from CBS; at 9:30 Rudy Vallee moves up half an hour; at 10 Abbott and Costello step down from 7:30.

Also here are some other changes: On CBS at 8 in place of Frank Sinatra's "Reflections" will be a new drama, "Corliss Archer," the story of a teen-age misadventure on MBS Alfred Wallenstein's "Simphonetta" is moving down to 9:30 from 8.

Because his wife, Mrs. Mary Denny, is to be included in the panel of speakers for the question "Can War-Working Mothers Be Home Makers?" on America's Town Meeting via the Blue at 8:30, George V. Denny, Jr., will turn over his usual post as moderator to H. V. Kaltenborn.

Stock Leaders Decline Slightly, But List Generally Is Irregular

Lack of Interest Blamed for Dull Session of Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP) — Some leading issues retreated mildly in the stock market today but there was enough buying to hold the list generally to a narrowly irregular path.

The lower prices seemed to reflect more a lack of interest than any definite selling pressure.

There were found such leaders as U. S. Steel down 1/4, General Motors off 1/4, Goodrich down 1/4, United Aircraft off 1/4, Goetz down 1/4, Kennecott off 1/4 and Sante Fe off 1/4. Union Carbide slipped 1/4 at 80 1/2.

American Telephone was buoyant most of the day, ending up 1/4 at 131. Radio Corp. finished with a gain of 1/4 at 5 1/2 after equaling its 1942-43 high, and other small gainers included Goodyear, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil (NJ) and Texas Co.

Curb trends were mixed. American Gas and Electric, Glen Alden coal and Gulf oil edging higher while losers included Humble oil, American cyanamid "B" and Cities Service. Volume here was 91,045 against 108,715 Tuesday.

Moderate improvement in the general run of rails, utilities and foreign issues kept the bond market balanced today but there were laggards here and there.

All groups in the Associated Press averages were higher except the utilities, which ended unchanged.

Government bonds were firm. The newly offered 1 1/2 of 48 made their bow on the stock exchange at 100.12 against the offering price of 100 and the 2 1/2 of '68-63, also included in the December financing program, attained another top at 100.19.

Embattled Love.

BY LORENA CARLETON

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

FOR A WHILE Paige remained at the ship's railing watching the diving boys who pursued it so far out of the bay that chances of their getting back to shore safely seemed precarious. A silly fear on the part of the spectators, for the skillful natives knew exactly the extent of their prowess. One by one they dropped out of the chase and swam back with their mouths full of silver coins.

Abby came up beside Paige. Her voice sounded disconsolate. "I see no reason why I should feel so lost. It isn't such a long trip. It's no more than crossing the continent, and I think nothing of that."

Her nervous frown accused the girl. Just as she had protested that night Abby offered her sanctuary in her Kaneohe house, she protested now. "Abby, please, you should not neglect Choppo for me."

"Now, that crow was picked clean long ago. So relax," she turned to look at the girl. "I'm not really neglecting him, dear, so long as he's ready to be with that shameless Rusty. I'll admit I've been a bit worried about the setup—Rusty gadding at night, you know—but after last night I feel better."

"What happened last night?" "Well, it seems Choppo has taken an idiotic childish dislike to Jiro, the Japanese boy looking after him. He chased him out of the room. Rusty was worried because that left Choppo all alone so he ditched his yellow-haired clinging vine and hurried back to Choppo. Her glance was the ultimate of malicious pleasure. "I guess that's something to put a wrinkle in Eugene's brow."

Paige ignored that angle of her friend's information to ask, "Why did Choppo turn against the Japanese?" "Aw, he had some absurdly dramatic idea that Jiro is a spy. The gray-haired woman gave an apologetic smile. "Did you ever hear of anything so perfectly nonsensical?"

Paige did not answer the apologetic smile. "Perhaps not," she said grimly. "Darling, don't be morose. I'm morose enough for two. You surely admit those things are fantastic for us—death and destruction."

The girl looked up at the Navy bombers zooming through the sky, circling the vessel in maneuvers strictly non-military, a friendly farewell. "Abby," she said, "there was Denison."

Abby's jeweled hand expressed such intense contrition that Paige hurried to say, "It's all right. Really it is."

"I'm sorry," the little woman said. "And so stupid!" "Let's talk about something else."

"Yes, dear." The little gnome's pale eyes swerved from the girl's face and lingered on the horizon. She was delighted to see they were even with Diamond Head. That marker afforded a slight relief to her embarrassment. "We'd better throw our leis."

Had they been on their small private deck, beyond a doubt each pretended threats as he accepted the light in the little Oriental maid's hands. "What an actress you are, Sal. And how well I see through you."

Exactly one minute later he wondered if he knew the woman at all for she turned down an expensive dress party of eight, something she rarely did. "If you want in to Society Sal's," someone once joked, "be sure to wear a white dinner jacket."

"Sorry. Sorry," she kept telling the puzzled group. When she rejoined him, Restwick Carnes was frowning. "Sal, will you please tell me why you turned down that party?"

"Because I want to talk to you," she looked at her ornate wrist-watch, demanding at the same time, "What are you doing out at this hour of the night? It's only 9 o'clock. Why aren't you with your blond?"

"I'm picking her up later," Martha appeared with a Scotch and soda on a tray, which he took and put down without sipping.

Sal asked, "What's she doing now?" Wrote the doors to the lower, "Hooney!" She danced a little jig. "Now you get one down there. Honoluli won't be half as much fun for me until you get back there."

"I have only this one left," Regretfully, Paige was lifting her own orchid lei from her shoulders. Each baby flower was like a purple butterfly. "It's so pretty."

"Yeah. Too bad it's considered bad form to keep them after Diamond Head. Flowers that cost a fortune in New York. But go on, dear. Throw it. We might get a curse put on us."

As if imitating its companion, Paige's lei followed the same pattern as Abby's. When it landed in the water the girl leaped hard against the rail and watched as long as she could see it.

Finally Abby grabbed her arm. "Come on. Let's stop worrying because a couple of redheads let us down. Let's go in and wind up the quarter slot machines for the rest of the suckers."

When Restwick Carnes tapped gently at Society Sal's screen door on Saturday night she kept him standing outside until she saw for sure that he was alone.

As he followed her through those guarded portals she told him with frankness, "You're O. K. alone, Wuthy, but don't ever try to bring that blond girl in here again."

Rusty sat down on the footstool of the chair she had taken and mocked, "O. K., Sal, I'll never try to bring her again." He reached for one of the monogrammed cigarettes, grinned and forestalled, "Put it on my bill. I'm going to smoke a lot of them."

She shouted indignantly, "You know you don't get bills presented to you in my private home—Marfa, put this man out if he becomes any more obnoxious!"

Restwick Carnes laughed at her

LaSalle Favored To Top Fort Hill Quint

Explorers Open Defense of City Crown Tomorrow

Allegany Host to Frostburg State College Jayvees Tonight

The LaSalle High Explorers, who have romped to four straight victories this season, will open defense of the city scholastic basketball championship tomorrow night, countering the Fort Hill Quint, finalists at 8 o'clock on the latter's floor in the first intra-city engagement of the present campaign.

The clash here features a heavy program of nine games scheduled in the district. Tonight, two contests are on tap including the scrap between Allegany High's Campers and the Frostburg State College Jayvees at 8 o'clock at Allegany.

Coch "Bill" Bowers' Alleganyans, who have won three of four games to date, losing only to Ferndale High of Johnstown, Pa., by two points, will be playing their second tussle of the week. Tuesday night, the West Siders smashed the Keyser (W. Va.) High Golden Tornado's win streak with a 40-36 triumph.

Beall Topped Jayvees
Frostburg's Jayvees, who lost a 35-33 decision to Beall in an extra period, will enter the contest on the short end of the odds but Bowers isn't taking the game too lightly. Allegany will probably line up with Don Beck and Jim Macfarlane at the forwards, Bob Spangler at center and Otis Sterne and Don "Lefty" Lee at the guards.

The clash will follow a preliminary at 7 o'clock between the Cumberland Rens and the Allegany Reserves. John Angellotti will referee the main attraction.

The LaSalle-Fort Hill collision is easily the top game on this week's card and the Explorers, who lost only to an Alumni combination last season, will be favored over the Scarlet and White Hilltoppers.

The Blue and Gold, with lanky George Geatz, who is setting the pace for city scorers, showing the way, defeated Piedmont 52-29, Beall 41-19, Alumni 33-15 and Central of Lonaconing 41-17.

Fort Hill, which ended a two-game losing stretch Tuesday night by trimming Paw Paw 43-28 in a return game, has a record of four wins and two setbacks. The Sentinels previously defeated Piedmont 41-29, Paw Paw 52-17 and Davis 28-24 and lost to Alumni 34-30 and Grafton 46-22.

La Salle Record Better

A comparison of the records of the two local clubs gives LaSalle an edge on both the offense and defense. The Explorers have amassed a total of 167 points, an average of forty-two a game, while Fort Hill has tallied 216, an average of thirty-six. LaSalle's rivals have scored eighty markers, an average of twenty, and Fort Hill's opponents have gathered 178, an average of nearly thirty.

Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh announced last night that he plans no changes in his Fort Hill lineup. Fred Davis and Carl Morris will be at the forwards, Captain Wally Troutman at center and Charley Barnes and O'Brien "Obie" Calhoun at the guards.

LaSalle, which has been idle since defeating Central here two days before Christmas, is expected to line up with George Geatz and Ray Schmutz forwards; Bill Hunt, center; and Bobby Stakem and Tommy Ford, guards.

Two Officials

In the preliminary contest at 7 o'clock, the Fort Hill junior high quintet will meet the LaSalle Tenth Graders. Charles "Chick" Imes and Van Roby will officiate in the main game.

Other games on tap tomorrow are Beall at Piedmont, Capon Bridge at Paw Paw, Bruce at Fort Ashby, Oakland at Rowlesburg, Frostburg Jayvees at Barton, Moorefield at Franklin in a Potomac Valley Conference tilt, Handley of Winchester, Va., at Romney and Petersburg at Mathias in the Vikings' opener.

The only engagement slated Saturday should be a close, hard-fought affair. The Davis High Wildcats and the Keyser Golden Tornado will exchange baskets at Keyser.

Celanese Spinners Lose to Cap-Spun Five

The Celanese "B" Shift Spinners took another one on the chin this week, losing 72-22 to the Celanese Cap-Spun outfit on the Central Y.M.C.A. court.

Big League Plan To Be Followed By Association

Season Will Open 16 Days Later—Schedule Quickly Adopted

By DAVE HOFF
CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP)—Head men of the American Association, who gave a big sigh of relief when the major leagues adopted a schedule and spring training program acceptable to the Office of Defense Transportation, today speedily approved a similar plan for their own 1943 season.

They decided at a special meeting to open their 154-game program April 29, sixteen days later than last year's start, and close Sept. 19, one week later than 1942.

A survey disclosed four of the eight clubs are pretty well set on where they'll train, and the other four agreed to do spring conditioning within the general territorial limits designed by the big leagues yesterday.

Schedule Quickly Adopted
Minneapolis will train at Terre Haute, Ind.; Louisville at home; Indianapolis probably in its own park; and Milwaukee within a twenty-five-mile radius of its home site.

"Just to show how smoothly things went," said George Trautman, league president, "we adopted our schedule in five minutes. Usually it takes four or five days."

The Association, which staged one of the closest finishes in its history last year, expects another fine season this summer, despite the loss of many players to the armed forces and an unsettled situation at St. Paul. The Saints at the end of last season were uncertain about operating this year, but Trautman said the club "has not indicated it is not going to go."

Louisville Has Problem
Louisville was the only team sure it could not train inside the legalized limits set by the majors. The southern boundary of that zone was set at the Ohio and Potomac rivers, and the Colonels are located, of course, on the South bank of the Ohio. The others expect to stay on the North side.

The International League, whose playoff champion annually meets the American Association titlist in a post-season "Little World Series," is scheduled to meet Feb. 6 in New York, but there was every indication it would operate on the same setup as its big Class AA neighbor from the Midwest.

The opening day Association schedule sends Toledo to Indianapolis, Columbus to Louisville, Milwaukee to Minneapolis and Kansas City to St. Paul.

Helen Jacobs Plans To Train as Officer Candidate in WAVES

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Jan. 6 (AP)—Helen Jacobs, who has laid aside her famous tennis racket lately because the "war comes first," is going to Smith college January 16 for training as an officer candidate in the WAVES.

"I hope to get in public relations work," she said. "And I think the women's part in this war is wonderful."

Miss Jacobs has been enrolled as a student at the college of William and Mary since last October.

Reds' Baseball Park Is under Ohio River

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP)—President Warren G. Harding yesterday said the Reds was obviously pained yesterday when the major league club owners talked about their problems—and particularly the problem of where to train in view of training zone limits restricting the clubs to areas North of the Ohio river.

Gies, who came up to the major league from the eastern flood zone, commented, "Right now, OUR ball park is precisely three feet under the Ohio river."

Beau Jack Named "No. 1 Contender" That Paul Dean Will Come Back

By SID FEDER
NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—The National Boxing Association announced its regular quarterly ratings of fighters in all divisions today, along with a statement from President Abe Greene that "full responsibility" for "cleavage" in boxing championships lies directly with the New York State Athletic Commission.

Most pointed factor in the ratings was that of the top seven men in each of the four heavier divisions—welterweight through heavyweight—a total of more than half are in one branch or another of the armed forces and thereby out of active competition for the duration. Altogether seventeen of these twenty-eight tusslers are wearing one of Uncle Sam's suits, headed by the four champions—Heavyweight Joe Louis, Light Heavyweight Gus Lesnevich, Middleweight Tony Zale and Welterweight Red Cochrane.

Greene referred directly to the lightweight and bantamweight title situations in "pointing a finger" at the New York commission. The New York body has awarded Sammy Angott's abdicated lightweight throne to Beau Jack without the benefit of a previously agreed-upon tournament. In the bantamweight fust, the Empire State solons of Oz refused to recognize Manuel Ortiz of Los Angeles after he whipped Lou Salica in a ten-rounder in California. Since then, New York sanction also was withdrawn from Salica, but still the Manhattanistic fathers refused to put the crown on Ortiz's head.

Greene Flays Phelan
The ratings left the lightweight championship vacant, named Beau Jack the "leading contender" and then grouped as "logical contenders" eleven other 135-pounders, all of whom are eligible for the nationwide title tournament the NBA has planned. Under this plan, the tournament survivor would meet Jack for the title.

Greene related that the New York commission agreed with this schedule at first, but then changed its mind without notice and General John J. Phelan, the commission chairman, awarded the title recognition to Jack for his recent victory over Tippy Larkin.

General Phelan deliberately threw overboard his publicity proclaimed subscription to this plan, Greene said, "and through some mystic and devious decision decided to break faith and proclaim the Jack-Larkin bout for the title. General Phelan made an agreement which he must have believed was for the best and then ran out on it."

Following are the NBA ratings of the leaders in all weight divisions:
Heavyweights: Champion—Joe Louis, United States Army and Detroit; logical contender—Bilby Conn, United States Army and Pittsburgh; outstanding boxers—Mello Bettina, United States Army and Beacon, N. Y.; Tami Murrell, New York; Turkey Thompson, Los Angeles; Pat Valentine, United States Coast Guard and San Francisco; Lee Savold, Des Moines; Roscoe Toles, Detroit.

Light Heavyweights: Champion—Gus Lesnevich, United States Coast Guard and Cliffside, N. J.; logical contenders—Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland; Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati; Billy Soose, United States Navy and Farrell, Pa.; Anton Christofordis, Greece; outstanding boxers—Nate Bolden, Chicago; Ken Overlin, United States Navy and Decatur, Ill.; Freddie Mills, England; Tommy Tucker, United States Navy and New York; Johnny Colan, United States Coast Guard and New York.

Middleweights: Champion—Tony Zale, United States Navy and Gary, Ind.; logical contenders—George Abrams, United States Navy and Washington; Tony (Clancio) Martin, United States Coast Guard and Milwaukee; outstanding boxers—Ernie Vigh, United States Coast Guard and Newburgh, N. Y.; Coley Welch, United States Coast Guard and Portland, Me.; Fred Apostoli, United States Navy and San Francisco; Holman Williams, Detroit; Olivera Kid Tunero, Puerto Rico; Steve Belloise, United States Navy and New York; Eddie Booker, Los Angeles.

Cochrane Tops Welterweights: Champion—Fred (Red) Cochrane, United States Navy and Elizabeth, N. J.; logical contenders—Ray Robinson, New York; Henry Armstrong, Los Angeles, California; Jackie Wilson, United States Army and Los Angeles; outstanding boxers—Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh; Marty Servo, United States Coast Guard and Schenectady, N. Y.; Young Kid McCoy, United States Army and Detroit; Louis Kid Cocos, New Haven, Conn.

Lightweights: Champion—Vacant; leading contender—Beau Jack, Augusta, Ga.; logical contenders—Willie Joyce, Gary, Ind.; Allie Stolz, Newark, N. J.; Juan Zurita, Los Angeles; Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia; Maxie Shapiro, New York; Sluggie White, Baltimore; Johnny Thomas, Los Angeles; Cleo Shans, Los Angeles; Joey Peralta, Tamaqua, Pa.; Chester Rico, New York; Johnny Greco, Montreal.

Featherweights: Champion—Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh; logical contender—Willie Pep, Hartford, Conn.; outstanding boxers—Chaiky Wright, Los Angeles; Lulu Costantino, New York; Sal Barloia, Boston; Mike Raffa, United States Army and Philadelphia; Jackie Callura, Canada.

Bantamweights: Champion—Manuel Ortiz, Los Angeles; logical contender—Jui Kong Wong, Hawaii.

Browns Gamble That Paul Dean Will Come Back

Auker Traded to Senators in Order To Get Dizzy's Brother

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6 (AP)—The hopeful St. Louis Browns, who harbor pennant ambitions, gambled today that Paul Dean would make good on his second attempt to come back as a major league pitcher.

To get the younger brother of colorful Dizzy Dean, they gave the veteran mainstay of their staff, submarine-ball Elden Auker, to the Washington Senators. Auker won forty-four games and lost thirty-nine in his three seasons with the Browns, so it was a case of trading a known quantity—and quality—for a decided question mark.

However, Donald L. Barnes, president of the Browns, who engineered the deal at the Chicago major league meeting, was confident the 30-year-old righthander would be a valuable acquisition.

Meteoric Career
Dean had a meteoric career with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1934 and 1935 but developed arm trouble and drifted back to the minors. He made an unsuccessful appearance with the New York Giants in 1940.

Paul was nicknamed "Daffy" because his brother was Dizzy, but actually he was the quiet, steady, member of the duo of pitching fame and off-the-field foolishness.

Egged on by Dizzy, the brothers staged a strike with the Cardinals in June, 1934, because they were dissatisfied with Paul's pay. The walkout fizzled but it provided Dizzy with an opportunity for one of his best quips—"me 'n' Paul are three-strike men, not a two-man strike."

They showed their three-strike ability by pitching the Cards to a pennant and world championship in 1934. Paul winning nineteen games during the regular season and two in the World Series with Detroit. He won nineteen again in 1935.

Relied on Fast Ball
Paul and Dizzy had relied chiefly on a blazing fast ball and both burned themselves out. Dizzy, traded to the Chicago Cubs in 1938, quit baseball in 1941 and became a radio sports commentator in St. Louis. Paul kept trying.

After missing with the Giants, he returned to the Texas League and won nineteen games last season while losing only seven with Houston. Reports from there said he was "pitching with his head," mixing curves and a change of pace.

"He indicated that his arm was sound," Barnes asserted, "and he has shown that with a sound arm he can win in the majors."

Middies' Sports Slates Revised

Seven Events Cancelled and Four Others Added to Schedule

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 6 (AP)—Navy athletic officials announced today cancellation of seven winter sports events and addition of four others to the long mid-year schedule.

Opening Saturday against Dickinson college, the Middy basketball quintet seemed the only one of several mid-winter sports squads that might navigate its schedule without alteration.

The wrestling and fencing teams had to cancel twice because of transportation and problems imposed on opponents because of war-gear academic schedules.

The wrestlers gave up a Jan. 16 date with West Virginia and a Feb. 20 outing with Harvard. The fencers lost scheduled tilts with Rutgers, Jan. 30, and New York university, March 20.

The swimming team's scheduled opener, next Monday, with Cornell was cancelled. A tentative meet with North Carolina, Jan. 30, was moved back until Feb. 10.

The swimmers would have had another cancellation when Virginia called off a dual meet, Jan. 23, but Temple has been substituted.

Numerous plebe contests were dropped because of transportation. Additions to previously announced schedules also included a decision to send the gymnastic squad to the National Intercollegiate meet at State College, Pa., March 13, and scheduling of Penn State's fencers on Feb. 6 and the Quantico Marines' pistol team, Jan. 30.

Landis Feels Sorry For Baseball Writers

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the 76-year-old, finger-shaking commissioner of baseball, feels a bit sorry for the baseball writers assigned to cover spring training camps of the major league clubs this spring.

Looking up from his notes, after reading his statement to newsmen on the important action taken at yesterday's meeting, he said, with a wry look:

"Gentlemen, I wish you a pleasant spring training—I have a tear in my eye for you."

The listening reporters were mostly baseball writers.

Baltimore Club Will Do Spring Drills at Home

Orioles' Boss Admits Training Will Be Tough Proposition

BALTIMORE, Jan. 6 (AP)—"It seems definite now that we will do our spring training here at home," Tommy Thomas, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, said today.

"It looks like our minds have been made up for us. Outside of Washington we're the southernmost city in the training area. Judge Landis has outlined for the majors, and the weather probably will be no better elsewhere in the state than it will be here in late March and early April," Thomas said.

The Orioles' boss admitted training his International League squad at home would be a tough proposition chiefly because of interruptions that would develop in his work and that of the players.

Need Indoor Sport
Thomas began work on his exact plans only today. Although he and George W. Reed, Orioles treasurer and chairman of the club's executive committee, anticipated something like a restricted area, but not one with a southern boundary as far north as the Potomac river.

"We'll find some means to train here and I hope we can obtain an indoor spot for work in bad weather," Reed said. "Manager Thomas will decide our plans."

The Boston Red Sox already have contacted the Bird heads about exhibition games with the Orioles in early April. It may develop that one or two major clubs and a couple of International League outfits might try to obtain training spots somewhere in the state. On the Eastern Shore there are a number of ball fields in towns that played in the Eastern Shore League.

Stadium Could Be Used
C. Markland Kelly, a member of the Park board and inactive chairman of the Stadium committee, said today the stadium could be utilized and he thought the municipal arena would be available if a major club wished to come here to train.

"I feel it would be worthwhile from two standpoints," Kelly said, "that of furnishing entertainment to the people of Baltimore and also the service men in nearby camps."

Tropical and Hialeah Call Off Race Meets

Ban on Pleasure Driving Results In Tracks' Action

Florida Suffers Blow but Loss Is New Orleans's Gain

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 6 (P)—Tropical Park today called off its horse race meeting, which had five more days to run, and Hialeah Park decided not to open its season next Wednesday in the face of the ban on pleasure driving.

Director of Racing Gerald Brady said Tropical President Henry L. Straus had told him in a telephone call from Baltimore to announce that the track would not open tomorrow.

"We are all soldiers, and orders are orders—ours not to reason why," Brady quoted Straus.

Tropical today held the fifteenth card of its winter meeting. The track has suffered heavily from gasoline rationing and poor Miami tourist season, attendance and parimutual both being far below normal.

Dog Track Shuts Down
One dog track—operated by the Hollywood Kennel Club in Broward county eighteen miles north of Miami—cancelled its meeting after tonight.

Other dog tracks and the Jai Alai Fronton decided to await developments before making definite announcements.

Chairman Alex M. Balfe of the Florida Racing Commission said the suspension would be a terrific blow to the state, which derives much of its major revenue for old age pensions from taxes on the sport.

Hard hit also were the hundreds of race track employees, and other hundreds of grooms, exercise boys, trainers and other horsemen employed by the stables which had shipped about 1,500 thoroughbreds here for the Florida season.

Among the performers stabled at Hialeah is Warren Wright's Whirlaway, the greatest money winner in turf history and a nominee for the $25,000 Widener stake, which was scheduled to close the Hialeah season March 6.

Fair Grounds Booming
The transportation problem already had caused the major league baseball clubs to cancel their annual spring training visits to the state, and almost all of the usual golf, tennis and fishing tournaments have been called off.

In New Orleans, however, the Fair Grounds race track management viewed OPA's restrictions as reacting favorably to the banner racing season there which ends in March. Florida's loss being New Orleans's gain.

Although the ban does not apply to the Louisiana area, Julius C. Reeder, general manager of the Fair Grounds, said transportation was not a serious problem there since the plant is located within the city limits and is easily accessible by street car, bus, or by walking.

Maryland May Seek To Rearrange Program

BALTIMORE, Jan. 6 (P)—Asserting that the federal ban on all pleasure driving was a virtual death blow to two of the state's major tracks, Chairman Frank Small, Jr., of the Maryland Racing Commission said today that the principal problem now was one of obtaining legislative permission to rearrange the usual track dates.

"If the new ban on pleasure driving is continued into the spring and presence at a race track is accepted as evidence of OPA violations," Small said, "then I believe it would be impossible for Bowie and Havre De Grace to operate."

"However, since there is nothing in the latest development to indicate that the ban is for the duration, we can be hopeful that it may not apply when the time comes for racing in Maryland in the spring."

"Our chief concern now is to see whether or not legislation can be passed which would put the schedule of the sport for the duration into the hands of the commission, with the right to determine the number of days which may be run at any one course."

The state law now permits 100 days of racing at the four major tracks, with not more than thirty days per year at any one layout.

"The governor has assured me that he feels that concessions should be made to continue the sport, provided of course that nothing we or the racing associations do will interfere in the least with the war effort," the chairman continued.

Will Obey the Law
"Maryland racing, like racing in all other sections of the country, stands ready to obey promptly any rules and regulations which may be necessary and there will be no effort to operate the sport if the federal government feels that its operation will interfere in the slightest with the successful conclusion of the war."

There has been some talk among horsemen of moving all 100 days of racing to Pimlico, which is in the city limits of Baltimore and is served by street cars, but Small said he did not believe the city would want that much racing.

He suggested that if the Legislature gave its approval, Pimlico might handle fifty days of racing with the remainder of the season at Laurel, which is near rail lines.

Logan To Coach Tiger Hoopmen

"Cappy" Cappon Resigns as Princeton Tutor To Enter Navy

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 6 (P)—The resignation of Franklin C. (Cappy) Cappon as Princeton university's head basketball coach to accept a navy commission and the appointment of William F. Logan as his successor was announced today by Asa S. Bushnell, acting director of athletics.

Bushnell announced that John P. (Kats) Kadlic, assistant football and basketball coach since 1935, also had resigned "to enter the armed service."

Cappon, Princeton court mentor and an assistant football coach since 1938, has been commissioned a lieutenant senior grade and will report tomorrow to the Navy Pre-Flight Training School at Chapel Hill, N. C., as an athletic instructor, Bushnell said.

Logan, who joined the Princeton staff in 1930, has coached the Tigers, powerful lacrosse teams and been supervisor of physical education since 1938. Bushnell said he would continue in both of those capacities as well as coach basketball.

Baseball Clubs Search for New Training Sites

Yanks Favor New Jersey, Giants Look toward New England

By JUDSON BAILY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (P)—New York's baseball clubs began an industrious search for nearby training sites today with the Yankees favoring New Jersey and the Giants looking toward New England or upstate New York.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the Yanks, disclosed that he had discussed several prospective camps with his telephone and that tomorrow his chief scout, Paul Krichell, would inspect facilities offered at Asbury Park, Lakewood, and New Brunswick, N. J. He said that for various reasons he leaned toward the first two, although at New Brunswick the club could have the benefit of Rutgers university's big gymnasium for indoor work.

"If I could be sure of the weather, I would have the Yanks train right in Yankee stadium," declared Barrow, "and I wouldn't care how hot or cold it was—just so it was dry. I don't recall a single year we couldn't have trained at home with the season starting as late as it will this year."

"But we're going to look around and I'm going to have Joe McCarthy come down here before we make a final decision."

Ott, Stoneham Confer

Mel Ott, manager of the Giants, arrived today from his home in New Orleans and immediately went into a huddle with Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, about training plans. They said they hoped to locate a college field house that would be suitable either in New England or upstate New York and possibly transfer to the Polo Grounds early in April.

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, said he was hoping that the army would decide that it does not need the field house when it moves into Yale next week and added he would not disclose possible alternatives, before the army has made its decision.

Rickey said the Dodgers would open their training about March 10 or 15, Barrow predicted about March 25 for the Yanks and Stoneham indicated the Giants would get underway not later than March 28.

Ott expects to be here several days, inspecting training sites and going over player prospects and contracts with other officials of the Giants. He said five players had joined the armed forces since the close of the season—Babe Young, Bob Carpenter, Willard Marshall, Dave Koslo and Hal Schumacher—and that he understood Johnny Rucker had applied for a naval commission.

Four major league clubs already have definitely located their training sites. The Detroit Tigers announced today they would work at Eversville, Ind., the Chicago Cubs and White Sox previously selected French Lick Springs, Ind., and the Boston Red Sox chose Tufts university at Medford, Mass.

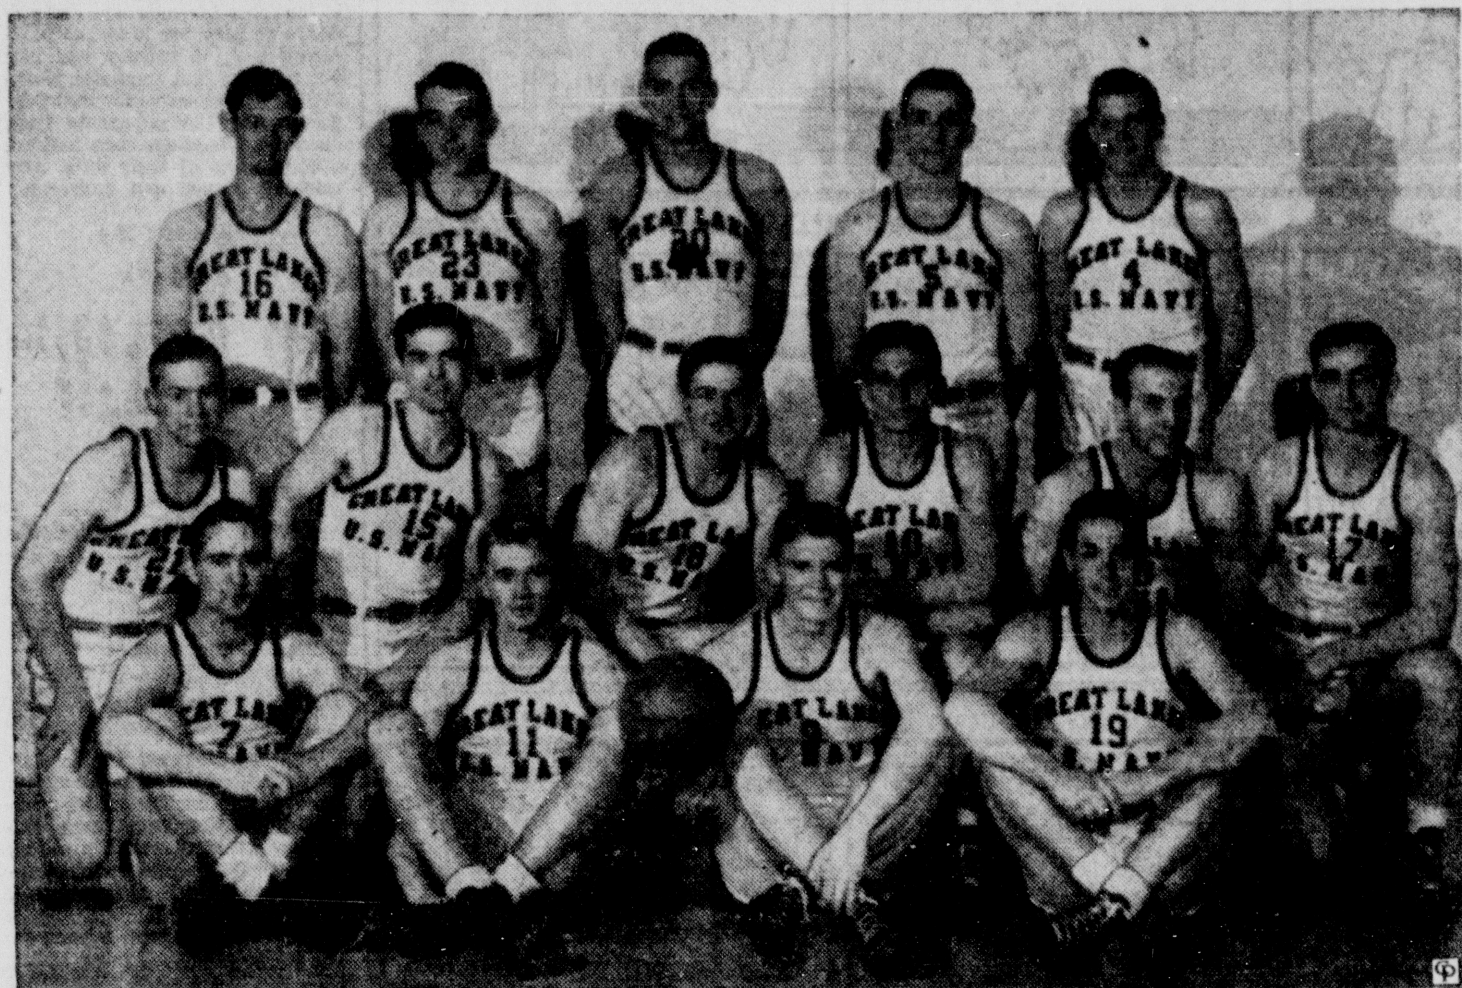

Griffith Undecided
President Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators said he was anxious to cooperate in every way possible in solving the transportation problem but had not decided yet on a training site.

The Chicago Cubs and White Sox, which are pretty well set on establishing spring training camps at French Lick Springs, Ind., 273 miles South of Chicago, will send a delegation there tomorrow to survey sites for two baseball diamonds.

William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said the club would train "not far from home" and that he was trying hard to select a site.

Sub Bowler Rolls Big Set of 485

ELMHURST, Ill., Jan. 6 (P)—So many of the regular bowlers in one of the leagues here have gone to war that one of the teams drafted Mrs. Mildred Bierlein, a slim blonde, the other night.

Mildred, a veteran bowler in women's competition, stepped up and bowled a three-game total of 485, which the boys thought wasn't bad, especially when her husband, bowling on another team, failed to equal it.

inals have decided definitely against training in St. Louis, but are considering various cities in Missouri. Among the possible sites is Sedalia, which offers a park and the big state fairgrounds coliseum for indoor training.

Reds Stuck on Boundary
The St. Louis teams will return home a week earlier than usual and play a seven-game spring series. In recent years they've met in only two games before the start of the season.

Cincinnati Red officials, stuck right on the southern boundary, expressed hope that the team wouldn't have to train on its own field and indicated they would get for a site close to other major league competition. This might send them to Indiana.

The current Ohio river flood, which has the first eight rows of boxes at the ball park under water, has complicated the problem of getting the field in shape and the Reds want to give the groundskeepers all the time possible for seeding and trimming.

President Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves, said he has been in contact with several nearby colleges and schools regarding the use of their baseball cages and field houses but, because of the vacations, has been unable to make any definite arrangements as yet. Among the most satisfactory sites are Amherst college and Phillips Andover academy, owners of large indoor athletic plants.

What effect the meat shortage will have on the quality of the baseball player is problematical, as maybe it is too much to expect portnerhouse performance on a potato and spinach diet. The men will become sullen and morose, and mentally

Meat Shortage Viewed as Threat To Baseballers Traditional Diet

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (P)—One of the major effects of the war on baseball seems to have been overlooked. That is the meat shortage, which threatens the traditional diet of the athletes and may even go so far as to force some of them to think real hard when they sit down to the table.

In the past the ball player would wave aside the menu and blurt: "Never mind the schedule; just bring me a steak, that thick and medium well." Ball players and steaks virtually have grown together. Or rather, the ball players have grown as the steaks disappeared.

Anyway, you could no more think of the diet of a major league ball player without thinking of steaks than you could think of bread without butter or knife without fork, and it is a safe bet that many a young minor leaguer's dream of life in the majors was not complete without the picture of a thick, juicy T-bone waiting for him after a hard day's work at the apple orchard.

A Mental Picture
Perhaps it's lack of imagination, or mental laziness, but whatever the cause the ball players have only one idea when they sit down to eat, particularly if they are eating on the club. For breakfast they'll order a steak. At lunch it will be steak. Dinner will be two steaks, and to break the monotony they'll order a steak as a snack just before turning in for the night.

What effect the meat shortage will have on the quality of the baseball player is problematical, as maybe it is too much to expect portnerhouse performance on a potato and spinach diet. The men will become sullen and morose, and mentally weary from trying to think of what to order three times a day.

We have a vivid mental picture of the athletes traveling across the country, gazing wistfully from their day-coach windows at herds of cows and envisioning each animal sliced into tasty cuts.

The association of ball players and steaks isn't just a legend. The athletes really go for them, and in such quantities that clubs have made special efforts to see that an ample supply of beef always was on hand. If memory serves Larry MacPhail flew down a supply of choice cuts to his Brooklyn Dodgers at Havana a year or so ago when the players demanded home-grown beef.

The one advantage of the shortage is that the tendency of some hollow-legged athletes to eat themselves out of the league will be curbed. When the food is stowed away at the club's expense it's just like putting a kid behind a candy counter and as far as some players are concerned, and they'll eat themselves into a balloon.

This trait has been subdued by some clubs by putting the men on a daily allowance, but the drawback there is that, if the players are paid so much a day in cash to provide their own nourishment, a few of them are liable to fade away from malnutrition, as even their appetites aren't strong enough to overcome the urge to salvage a few cents by ducking out of the swank hotels and plopping themselves on a stool at a side-street eatery.

Anyway, the clubs might use the shortage as basis of a bonus system, with promises of steak dinners for no-run games, home runs and such. If the players' appetites aren't based entirely on tradition, and they really crave steak and don't just order it because that's what a ball player should order, it might work.

But right now it looks like the ball players' diet will have little meat in it. Like this column.

Thomas Upsets Davis, 31 to 27

Emil Suder's Cagers Avenge Loss by Winning over Wildcats

THOMAS, W. Va., Jan. 6.—Coach

Emil Suder's Thomas high court, who had won only one of five previous games, upset the Davis high outfit 31-27 here tonight to slow down the Wildcats in their drive toward the Tucker county scholastic championship.

Davis, holding a previous victory over Thomas and two decisions over the Parsons High Panthers in the county series, had been favored to repeat an earlier 21-12 decision over the Sudermen.

However, Thomas took command in the opening quarter and set the pace all the way, leading 7-3 at the end of the first half, 17-11 at the half and 23-16 at the close of the third session.

Thomas, in ending a three-game losing streak, was sparked by John Mann, center, who gathered a dozen points on four doubledeckers and four of six fouls. Don Flanagan and Wilton Evans each had eight tallies for the Wildcats. The lineups:

OAKLAND, Jan. 6.—Coach Robert Sprague's Oakland high cagers failed to register a field goal in absorbing a 31-4 lacing at the hands of the Rowlesburg (W. Va.) high combination here tonight.

Nice with fifteen points and Ayresman with ten paced the visitors while Snyder with three of four fouls and Kahl with one of three accounted for Oakland's markers. The lineups:

Freddie Wolcott Plans To Enter Naval Aviation

Top Hurdler Wants To Cover More Territory in Combat Duty

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 6 (P)—Flying Freddie Wolcott, who covered plenty of territory on the ground with his record-breaking hurdling feats, wants to cover more from the air in combat duty for his Uncle Sam.

In fact, so great was the famed track man's desire to get into the thick of battle that he went partners with three other men in the purchase of an airplane to get his training beforehand.

Wolcott, the world's top hurdler, has been instructor in military track at the Athens, Ga., naval pre-flight school where he was a lieutenant, junior grade, but soon will be transferred, at his own request, to naval aviation.

When that comes he already will have seventy hours of solo flying.

"The pre-flight schools are doing a great work," said the blond flier who is visiting in Houston where Mrs. Wolcott's parents reside.

"I'm proud to be helping in it, but I also want to see combat duty before the war ends."

Freddie doesn't think the pre-flight schools will participate in competitive athletics much longer.

"Officers and cadets who played football had to be released from some of their regular duties," Wolcott added, "and to avert this officials decided against a school basketball team. The cadets at Athens simply do not have time to take their regular course and prep for basketball."

TELL HIM THE STORY
THERE IS no use in giving your partner insufficient information to guide him, when you have a really important story to tell. When you feel certain a game is in the cards for your side, and you desire to play for it at the best-fitting suit, it usually will pay you to make that emphatic. Nothing is more effective for that purpose, after the opponents have done some bidding, than making a call in one of their suits. Any thinking player can understand that.

What a difference in the way North treated the situation at the second table in the bidding recorded. At that table were two of New York's greatest masters, who were playing in a social duplicate in the suburb of Larchmont. When the not-vulnerable opponents had shown such a heart fit, and he himself had three of the suit, North felt sure his partner had at the most only a singleton, so there could not be any heart loser.

Also, with his own singleton, there would be no more than one club loser. The bids of the other suits made him certain his partner would have length in either spades or diamonds, possibly in both, so when his second turn came he was ready to compel a game in one of these. That is exactly what his own bid of 3♥ meant—that he was willing to venture a game in spades or diamonds, whichever South preferred, no matter how weak South was.

It assuredly turned out as he expected, with the loss of only one trick in each minor suit, giving his side a doubled game for a top score.

WIFE PRESERVERS

To wash an afghan, use lukewarm soap suds of good quality soap, rinse in clear water of the same temperature. Put curtain stretchers on chairs in yard or unused space in house, stretch a strong sheet on stretchers and lay the afghan on the sheet, fastening both down just enough to prevent the wind blowing them away if you are drying it out-of-doors. If you follow these directions the afghan will dry as soft and fluffy as new.

Federal Officials Indicate Approval Of Airport Job

Visitors from CAA and WPA Say They Will Submit Favorable Reports

Officials representing the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Works Progress Administration and the City of Cumberland made a complete tour of inspection of the Municipal Airport project at Wiley Ford, W. Va., in an effort to determine action necessary to complete the job.

One of the largest WPA projects attempted in this section, the project started nearly two years ago, and has been little more than fifty per cent completed despite original estimates that the work would take less than a year.

WPA Work Ends Soon

By presidential order the project, along with all other WPA work in some sixteen states must be abandoned as a WPA project by February 1, for the duration. With a large amount of local and federal money already invested, city officials believed that the project should be completed to a point where the port can be placed in operation.

It was with this in mind that the city council two weeks ago, named Charles Z. Heskett, city solicitor, administrator of the job with full authority to complete it.

Heskett was instrumental in getting WPA and CAA officials here to look over the job and make recommendations.

Those who visited the port with Heskett and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer included, Albert H. Wessel and John A. Dow, both of Harrisburg, Pa., representing the CAA; Eli Abbott, Washington, D. C., C. F. Bornfield and J. Warren Belcher, both of Baltimore; Edgar F. Hoover, mill of Frederick, all representing the WPA.

Wessel To Make Report

Wessel indicated he would make a complete report to CAA officials in Washington and recommend full co-operation in an effort to complete the port. He said his report will ask assistance of the CAA, army and navy and the Federal Works Agency.

The Federal Works Agency can, if it approves the project for funds, allot money to have the airport completed by contract.

In the meantime, Heskett indicated, the city will proceed with its own plan to ask the legislature to authorize a bond issue of $150,000 to do the job, if other funds are not forthcoming.

Hagerstown Forms Letter League For Servicemen

Pattern Plan after Local Organization; Gunter Explains Idea

Several representatives of the Allegheny County Letter League, a patriotic organization which sends a monthly news letter to all men in armed service outside continental United States, attended a dinner Tuesday night at Hagerstown, and assisted in the formation of a letter league for Washington county.

The dinner was held in the Maryland room of the Alexander hotel, with Thomas Pangborn, president of the Pangborn Manufacturing company as host to forty civic, business and industrial leaders of Hagerstown and the local group.

Among those present were Mayor Richard Sweeney, Col. W. Preston Lane, Associate Judge Joseph D. Miah, Neal Baylor of the Hagerstown Daily Mail and others including representatives of the Red Cross, clergy, legal profession, American Legion, service clubs, chamber of commerce and other groups.

William A. Gunter, president of the Allegheny County Letter League explained how the league was formed here, how it is financed and the service it renders in mailing a monthly news letter to men out of the country. Gunter was accompanied by Mrs. Fred Small, Mrs. John Magnin, all members of the Allegheny league.

After some discussion the Hagerstown group decided to form a league to be known as the Washington County Letter League and follow the same plan as the local group. Hagerstown newspapers offered their fullest cooperation and all of those present pledged their assistance.

Gunter said last night that the local letter league is gaining much attention and other towns in Maryland have also expressed interest in the project.

O'Connor Designates Air Warning Week

Meetings Will Be Held in Cumberland Feb. 8 and Oakland Feb. 9

The week of Feb. 8 has been designated as "Air Warning Week" in the state of Maryland by Gov. O'Connor, Howard P. Loughrie, supervising director of the Seventh district of the Air Warning Service of the First Fighter Command of the Philadelphia Region, announced last night.

Meetings will be held in each county in the state during the week. Loughrie said, with representatives of the army and Baltimore Filter Center speaking at each session. The Allegheny county meeting will be held in Cumberland Feb. 8, and the Garrett county meeting will be held in Oakland Feb. 9.

More than seventy observers and officers of the Seventh district met in the federal building here Tuesday night and heard two United States Army officers tell them it would be impossible for the civilian defense organization to function without the ground observation service operating at all times.

The officers who spoke were Capt. L. W. Tipton, deputy state director of the Air Warning Service, and Lieut. Morgan Whelock, wing commander of the Baltimore Filter Center.

A film picturing the operation of the Air Warning Service from the time an airplane is spotted until it is intercepted, was shown at the meeting.

Among those attending besides Capt. Tipton, Lieut. Whelock and Loughrie were Corp. K. M. Riordan, of the filter center; Alex Heson, district director of Garrett county; Corp. Thomas Currie, of the state police, sub-district director of Garrett county; Miss Anne Sloan, sub-district director of Lonaconing, and Fred W. Boettner, sub-district of Frostburg.

Co-operation Is Urged in OPA Ban On Pleasure Cars

McCormick Says Aid of Local and State Police Will Be Most Helpful

Patriotic co-operation of all citizens in this community with the OPA order stopping all pleasure driving, effective today at noon, is urged by Leo H. McCormick, state director of the OPA, in a telegram received last evening by Mayor Thomas P. Conlon.

McCormick said:

"OPA has ordered all pleasure driving stopped, effective at noon, January 7, in seventeen eastern states where the critical fuel oil shortage necessitates sharp curtailment in gasoline shipment.

"Urgently request your co-operation in asking citizens of your community for patriotic co-operation in this war emergency.

"In obtaining compliance with the new regulation full co-operation of state and local police will be most helpful.

"Suggest you request your state and local enforcement agencies to lend their aid in reporting violations.

"Local OPA enforcement officers will communicate with such agencies in more detail as to ways in which this co-operation may be extended.

MELVIN DREW POSTS $500 BOND AND IS RELEASED FROM JAIL

Melvin Michael Drew, 39, Locust Grove, was released from the Allegheny county jail yesterday on bond of $500 for action of a federal grand jury on a charge of violating the Selective Service act.

Drew, a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, was arrested Tuesday by State Trooper M. Frank Beamer who said Drew failed to report to Local Draft Board No. 3 to be sent to a conscientious objector camp.

Deputy United States Marshall Howard P. Loughrie said last night Drew probably will be given a hearing within a month. When he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Wilbur V. Wilson Tuesday afternoon Drew pleaded guilty to the charge.

Army Recruiting Office Here Will Remain Open

Women Are Asked To Participate in Drive for WAAC Recruits

Col. D. M. Cheston, in charge of army recruiting and induction in Baltimore and for this district, announced yesterday that the regular United States Army Recruiting Station for the Cumberland area, located in the post office here, will remain open until further notice.

Col. Cheston said, "although our station in Cumberland can no longer accept enlistments from men between eighteen and thirty-eight, it will remain open until further notice in order to act primarily as an information center for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

"Soldiers have been assigned from district headquarters who are thoroughly trained to answer vital questions concerning the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. Interest in the WAAC has mounted to great proportions within recent weeks and in view of the fact that a nationwide drive is in progress, we feel it is imperative that the Cumberland section have a convenient place to make inquiries. Lieutenants Helen L. Miller and Virginia A. Eversole, WAAC recruiting officials, will make regular visits to Cumberland within the very near future."

Col. Cheston also mentioned that outstanding women from in and around Cumberland are to be asked to participate in the current WAAC drive for recruits. The main WAAC recruiting station for Maryland is in the Equitable building, in Baltimore.

LIEUT. JOHN K. MORGAN WRITES HIS PARENTS FROM ALASKA BASE

Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 107 South Lee street, have received a letter from their son, Lieut. John K. Morgan, Air Corps, "somewhere in Alaska."

The letter was written the day after Christmas and Morgan writes that their Christmas dinner was sumptuous and one of the best he has ever had. Due to censorship regulations he said he could not be very specific on several points but that the scenery on the trip to Alaska was something to see.

It was a distinct change in weather he experienced. From Miami, Florida's semi-tropical heat to below zero Alaska weather. While in Alaska he hopes to get in some skiing as there is plenty of snow available for such sport. Several of the men he trained with at March Field and at Muroc Field are with him he stated and one has been sent to Australia. Lieut. Morgan has been in the air corps for over a year.

Three Elevated to Rank of Sergeant, Capt. Conlon Announces

Emphasizing that the purchase of war bonds is not a donation but an investment, Charles A. Piper, president of the Liberty Trust Company and chairman of the Victory Fund Committee, yesterday told members of the Cumberland Lions Club that in view of the fact that much more money will be available this year and there will be less places to spend it, the general public will be given a better opportunity to put its money to work for Uncle Sam.

Introduced by Delbert Kitzmiller, program chairman, Piper reviewed Allegheny county's excellent showing in the purchase of war bonds in 1942, and described the E. F. and G. series of bonds and other federal securities.

More Money To Invest

The speaker stressed that the national income in 1942 was $115,000,000,000 and the merchandise available for re-sale was $75,000,000,000. He then added that the national income for 1943 is estimated at $143,000,000,000 but the merchandise available will be less than last year, thus affording every wage ENLISTED IN WAGS—Billy Davis, 11, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. U. Davis, 24 Washington street, and his dog, "Pal," are pictured above after the youngster had enlisted his canine friend with Dogs for Defense. The boy and his dog have been inseparable companions for the past three years but Billy has no misgivings over giving "Pal" to military service.

Close Friends Will Part Company, Boy Enlists His Dog in the WAGS

Billy Davis's Collie, 'Pal,' Will Leave Soon for Military Service

Those inseparable companions, Billy Davis, 11, and his dog, "Pal," 3, are about to part company. The youngster has enlisted his canine friend in the dog army, the WAGS, to do his bit for Uncle Sam in beating down Hitler and the Japs. Ever since "Pal," a Collie, became Billy's dog three years ago at the age of five weeks, the two have been the best of friends, traveling together constantly, much in the manner of the lamb that followed Mary about in the nursery rhyme.

When Billy went to bed, "Pal" went along. When Billy went into the yard, "Pal" went along. If Billy went horseback riding, "Pal" went along. In fact, everywhere that Billy went, "Pal" was sure to go.

Has No Misgivings

Billy, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. U. Davis, 24 Washington street, has no misgivings, however, about giving up his dog. "To put it mildly, he's pretty thrilled about the whole thing."

Several weeks before Christmas Billy was reading an article in a magazine about writing to New York for information on enlisting dogs in the service and his letter to Dogs for Defense soon followed.

Then Billy received a reply and an enlistment blank full of questions. Dogs for Defense wanted to know "Pal's" breed, color of his eyes, the color of his hair, his age, where he was raised, his temperament and dozens of other things. Billy answered them all and sent them back to Dogs for Defense along with a picture of "Pal" a day or so after Christmas.

Now Billy's waiting to hear when "Pal" will be inducted.

"Pal" Is Family Favorite

Billy, however, isn't the only member of the Davis family that will be sorry to see "Pal" leave. The dog is quite a favorite of Dr. and Mrs. Davis and Billy's thirteen-year-old sister, Bonnie.

Bonnie has a pet dog of her own, a Cocker spaniel, and she is especially sorry to see "Pal" leave because he and the spaniel are engaged and a marriage ceremony (Continued on Page 9, Col. 1)

POLICE ARREST TWO YOUTHS RIDING IN STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

Two Cumberland youths driving an automobile state police said yesterday, were arrested by Trooper Blair J. Buckle after a chase from Rawlins to Five Mile hill, fifteen miles beyond Keyser, W. Va., yesterday morning.

The youths, William Hayden, 19, and George Stewart, 17, stole the automobile owned by Mrs. L. Leslie Helmer, 500 Washington street, from its parking place on Baltimore street, near Liberty shortly before 11 a. m. yesterday, police said.

A short time after the theft was reported by Mrs. Helmer, Buckle heard a state police broadcast of the crime while he was patrolling in the Rawlins vicinity. Within a few minutes the car sped past Buckle and he immediately gave chase, finally overtaking them at Five Mile hill.

Asked why they had stolen the car, the youths told officers they didn't have "anything else to do." They said they saw the car with the key in the ignition and "we just hopped in."

Both youths are held in the county jail pending further investigation.

Man Is Injured In Auto Accident

Car Operated by Glen Wright Leaves National Pike near LaVale

Glen Wright, 26, Park Heights, a meter reader for the Potomac Edison Company, was in fair condition in Allegheny hospital last night with chest and head injuries suffered when the automobile he was driving ran off the National highway, a short distance west of the state police barracks in LaVale at 6 p. m. yesterday.

State Trooper M. Frank Beamer, who conducted the investigation along with Trooper Blair J. Buckle, said Wright's car came to a stop between an eighth and a sixteenth of a mile from the highway.

Wright was driving toward Cumberland, according to the officers, when his car left the highway, narrowly missing a pole on his right side of the road.

The machine pursued a course across a vacant lot, up a small bank, across the yard of a home where it almost struck the house, then dropped down a perpendicular across a field, finally coming to a stop within eight feet of the back porch of another home.

Liquor Sales Are Limited to Quart A Day in W. Va.

Order Put into Effect To Protect Existing Supplies, Commission Says

The manager of the Ridgeley liquor store was notified yesterday afternoon that the West Virginia Liquor Control Commission had limited whiskey and gin sales in its stores and agencies to one quart a day per person effective yesterday afternoon in a move to protect existing supplies until further shipments are received.

Pointing out that the state now has 117,000 cases on hand and emphasizing there will continue to be a "plentiful supply," the commission said, however, it felt the restriction was necessary at this time to prevent depletion of store stocks just after the holiday rush.

Adjoining monopoly states—Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia—have imposed similar limits on sales.

The West Virginia order, which was put into effect by telegrams to all stores and agencies late yesterday, covers all alcoholic beverages except wines which still may be purchased a gallon at a time.

The commission explained that shipments en route to the state have been delayed by flood waters, which also interfered with restocking of some stores from the warehouse supply.

State May Defer Child Guidance, Hygiene Clinics

Dr. Jones Hints Program May Be Discontinued for Duration

Mental hygiene and child guidance clinics, which have been conducted here monthly for the past five years, may be discontinued because of war conditions, according to a letter received yesterday by Dr. Kenneth B. Jones, superintendent of the Springfield State hospital.

Dr. Jones advises the health department not to plan clinics for adults or children this month, and added that a decision will be made later as to whether the clinics will be continued or abandoned.

Child guidance clinics have been held in the board of education building, Washington street, and mental hygiene clinics for adults under the supervision of Katharina Stuber, out-patient psychiatrist of the Springfield State hospital.

Dr. Stuber, however, failed to appear in her appearance here in October and November and it was hoped that the clinics might be discontinued for the duration.
